Asks for tax abatement

Federal-Mogul may locate in city

Federal-Mogul, known world-wide for its manufacture of engine bearings and associated products, may soon build a plant in Romulus near Middlebelt Road and Smith Street.

First step in the company's desire to build locally came Tuesday night when Romulus City Council set 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, July 25, as the date for a public hearing on the proposal.

The hearing will record testimony from local residents for and against the construction of the plant.

Prior to Federal-Mogul's presentation at the council session, the company showed slides of its rundown of the building program at a dinner with council members and Mayor William M. Oakley at the Romulus Airport Hilton.

In its presentation to council, Federal-Mogul requested the city to establish an industrial development district to permit property tax incentives under Michigan Public Act 198.

Should the council agree to the request following the public hearing, Federal-Mogul would pay only 50 percent of its property taxes over a 12-year period. Since its inception in 1974, Public Act 198 enables municipalities to induce industrial firms to locate locally by offering them the mentioned tax break for 12 years.

A new unused building now sits on the 3.93 acre site at Middlebelt and Smith. Should Federal-Mogul go ahead with its plant, it would also use 6.92 acres of land adjacent to first site, for a total of 10.85 acres.

According to Jay Young, Romulus public information officer the company would build a stamping operation that would employ local personnel among its workers. Also, the company stated to council that should it be granted the tax abatement under Public Act 198, it could be a prelude to additional projects at the new plant site, thus providing still more jobs for local residents.

Taxes paid by Federal-Mogul would begin with an estimated $60,000 in 1979 and end up in 1990 with the firm paying $160,000. Total taxes for the 12 years would be about $1,242,835, Young said.

After the 12-year tax incentive period is over, Federal-Mogul would pay a whopping $321,000 in its 13th year of operation, he noted, with taxes increasing every year after that.

Federal-Mogul has its corporate headquarters in Southfield. It was founded in 1899 in Detroit as a manufacturer of engine bearings and has now expanded its operations to cover thousands of products, including ball and roller bearings, oil seals industrial grinding wheels and components for the U.S. space program.

Young said Federal-Mogul now has some 13,000 employees at 38 plants of three continents.

Voted millage allows full program

New school board faces big job; has a lot going for it

By BOB AMEEN
ANP STAFF WRITER

Whether the incoming Romulus Board of Education can pull together a community torn apart by a recall earlier this year which saw four trustees ousted and one resign remains for the future to record.

Last week the organizational school board meeting saw Wayne Avery named to take over the helm as president. Newly elected Margaret Cole was elected vice president, senior board member Shirley Lombardi was voted in again as secretary and top vote getter Mike Woods was placed in the treasurer's slot.

Rounding out the seven-member board are trustees Evelyn E. Hopewell, Theresa M. Kraft and Jo Ann Marvicsin. Mrs. Kraft spearheaded the recall movement.

The new board has a lot going for it on the plus side. The successful millage election last fall has made it possible for the restoration of all school programs and services, many of which were included in a severe cutback when school finances looked bleak after several millage defeats.

With the announcement last week by Supt. James M. Garfield that a complete educational program will be available in the 1978-79 school year, things are looking up. In addition, Romulus schools will return to a six-hour day and a hot lunch program will be introduced in all schools this fall.

To bring the school's curriculum up to its newly gained potential, Garfield said 36 new teachers will be hired, 20 of whom help restore art, music and physical education back to normal. The remaining 16 teachers will be used to fill in other gaps left when low finances dictated cutbacks.

On the minus side, the superintendent said the state equalized value (SEV) of the school district will probably be about $2 million lower this year, resulting in slightly decreased revenue for the coming school year.

He said the Michigan Tax Tribunal notified him that the unusually high number of tax appeals from Romulus residents after this year's property reassessment will force a reduction in some local assessments and a resulting drop in taxes paid.

Garfield explained that the 1978 SEV for Romulus of $226,007,610 will be cut to about $224 million and that the school budget will be based on the lower figure. Instead of the Romulus school district generating $8,848,198 from the total 39.15 mills levied, it will receive a slightly lesser amount for its school operation.

The school board followed recommendations of an 18-member citizens advisory committee and restored the following programs during the second semester of the last school year: special education staff of social worker, speech therapists and school nurse; employment of high school co-op students; vision and hearing screening; student field trips; use of school facilities by community groups; hiring of department chairpersons; security services for high school; instrumental music programs for fifth and sixth grade pupils; spring athletic programs.

With the advent of school looming in a few weeks, the board has approved restoration of the following additional programs and services:

Art, vocal and instrumental music and physical education classes, including two 45-minute gym periods each week and one-hour classes each week for vocal music and art; addition of one hour to the school day for junior high and high school students, or six full periods as existed before cutbacks; seventh and eighth grade students will be offered additional courses in mechanical drawing, foreign languages, home economics, human relations and reading appreciation, as well as vocal music, art, choir, speech and dramatics; ninth grade students at South Jr. High will be offered art, photography, drama and television production, a full industrial arts program, vocal music and glee club; high school students can select one additional class in English, math, science, social studies, vocational courses, and graphic arts, in addition to access to a career resource center; all secondary schools will have a complete inter-scholastic athletic program for both boys and girls.

Schools will be open for new enrollments Aug. 21, teachers will report for in-service duties Sept. 5 and school will begin on Sept. 6, Garfield said.

City equalizes pay for non-union staff

Large differences in salaries between non-union supervisory personnel at Romulus City Hall have been more equalized in the recently adopted city budget of more than $11 million.

Larry Moore, finance director, explained that higher salaried personnel were given smaller percentage boosts, while those who get lower salaries were given higher percentage raises.

"This year, the city tried to bridge the gap which exists in salaries for department heads, assistant department heads and other non-union personnel," he said.

In some instances, Moore said, supervisory personnel making more than a specific amount remained at the same salary as last year.

Salary raises ranged from a low of one percent to a high of seven percent, he said.

Final salaries determined under the new city budget were worked out by a pay committee composed of council members Beverly McAnally, Ray Cantrell and Jerry Canejo, and Mayor William M. Oakley.

"To compare this year's total budget with last year is like comparing apples and oranges," Moore stressed. For the first time, the new budget contains all of the CETA and anti-recessionary personnel and the federal funds received by the city for their compensation.

By containing salaries of these personnel in the budget, Moore said, the overall higher figure appears misleading.

A breakdown of the old yearly salaries last year and this year's new ones for the 12 department heads at Romulus City Hall follows:

David Krause, city assessor, $16,494 to $17,319; Sandy Spjut, personnel director, $13,344 to $14,500; Larry Moore, finance director, $15,444 to $16,216; Ray Cantrell (son of Councilman Ray Cantrell), purchasing director, $15,444 to $16,216; John Wilhide, fire department chief, $17,229 to $18,090; Ed Fall, director of building department, remains the same at $19,854; Dave Paul, director of the department of public works, $18,804 to $19,744; Hyle Carmichael, industrial coordinator, remains the same at $19,119; community planning and development director (new man coming in to fill vacant position), remains the same at $21,219; Lee Silvey, ordinance department and animal control department director (combined under new budget), $15,400 to $16,170; Marie Debuyscher, parks and recreation department director, $13,554 to $14,500; Frank Stanzek, city corporation counsel, $17,500 to $18,375.

Department heads in the above group who were receiving annual salaries of $18,805 and above remained at the same level, those making $18,804 down to $15,000 got a five percent boost, and those paid $14,999 and below received a seven percent raise, Moore said.

Non-department heads had salaries computed on a schedule which left those making $17,000 yearly and above at the same level, while those making less than $17,000 annually got pay boosts from three to five percent, Moore said.

In this group were: Jay Young, public information officer, $17,019 salary remained the same; John Shea, coordinator and director of water and sewer billing, $15,700 to $16,171 (will not go into effect until completion of one year's service); Joyce Palmer, in charge of Meadows neighborhood center, $13,344 to $13,744.

Assistant department heads were increased in salary from one to seven percent, the finance director explained.

In the three years prior to this year, non-union personnel had been granted across-the-board salary increases which kept the sometimes large differences between comparable job classifications at the same percentages, he added.

"Too many coincidences"

Puskar probes hanky-panky in Huron truck controversy

Speculation that some hanky-panky is going on between the M & B Contracting Co. of Novi and the Wayne County Road Commission in regard to the total lack of violations from the county to some 80 to 100 sand-hauling trucks traveling through Huron Township is being checked out.

Sup. John Puskar and other township officials are scheduled to meet with the road commission Thursday (tomorrow). They will attempt to find out why violations have not been issued to the trucking firm by the road commission for what the township believes to be violations of the law.

"We've been told that the state Highway Department truck master has issued citations to M & B. We've given them citations too, but for some strange reason, the county road commission has not," Puskar said.

Also to be sounded out tomorrow by Puskar is why M & B and road commission officials are always present at the time that Huron Township confronts the trucking firm for an infraction.

"There are just too many coincidences," Puskar said. "We want to know if there is more behind this than meets the eye."

The township and the trucking company have been at odds over the route taken by the huge vehicles hauling sand from Sumpter Township to Monroe for the Detroit Edison Co. After the township was given permission by a circuit court judge to erect rerouting signs to control truck traffic, the road commission threatened to tear them down because it had not been asked for permission.

Since then, the road commission and Huron have been battling over the issue, each maintaining it is in the right. A meeting of all concerned groups last week wound up with Edison promising to let the township know when another meeting can be scheduled to iron out the controversy.

Sign erected by the township rerouted the trucks so they would not pass through the Waltz community and endanger pedestrians and motorists.

Since the signs were installed, Huron Township police have issued one ticket to M & B. Several more would have probably been given had police arrived on the scene quickly enough to apprehend the violators, Puskar said.

Truck terminal nears completion

A truck terminal of 54,400 square feet consisting of a service garage, office and docks is being built by Jones Transfer just west of Harrison Road on the south side of Ecorse Road in Romulus. Costing $1.9 million, the ter-terminal is being constructed on a 28-acre tract and is scheduled for completion in early spring of next year, according to Hyle Carmichael, industrial coordinator. (Photo by Tom Greenwood, ANP staff photographer.)

County revives senior noon meals

Wayne County is inviting some 350 senior citizens living in 42 suburban communities to come back again for hot noon meals.

The unusual invitation was prompted by "good news from Lansing" that additional state funding is on its way to provide more meals for outcounty seniors.

Jarrette Simmons, chairman of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners, and Commissioner Edgar L. Harris said the extra funds are the result of a "vigorous protest by county commissioners to last month's serious cutbacks in the Out-County nutrition program" that they say were caused by "totally inadequate federal-state funding."

Simmons said up until early June the county had been serving 2,800 meals a day at 47 nutrition site locations using state and federal monies provided under the Older Americans Act.

The county was forced to begin "turning away" nearly 200 senior citizens each weekday because the funding did not meet the demand for the noontime lunches.

Harris added: "Now we want those seniors to come back — and we can even serve about 150 new seniors."

The commissioners said that the state has promised an additional $15,246 to fund a maximum of 350 more meals daily through Sept. 30.

The county is currently serving about 2,640 lunches every day. The new funding will allow the county to serve nearly 3,000 meals a day.

"The State Office of Services to the Aging has also guaranteed that the level of funding will continue through fiscal 78-79 — as long as attendance at the meals averages 2,800 to 3,000 per day," Simmons said.

"If the seniors don't return for lunch, and if approximately 150 new seniors don't take advantage of the opportunity, the county will lose the newly-approved level of funding," Harris warned.

He added that the county protest was sparked when he learned from a few seniors in his district that there "was not enough food to serve everyone at a Taylor senior citizens center."

"When I checked with the county Office on Aging, they reported a three-to-five percent cutback at all county locations in order to offset a projected $40,000 to $70,000 deficit by Oct. 1, if meals continued at the 2,800 per day level," Harris explained. In addition 25 employees were laid off, however, most of those workers are now being recalled.

Western Wayne County nutrition sites now back at full strength are at:

- Huron School, 19132 Huron River Drive, New Boston;
- St. Aloysius Catholic Church, 11280 Ozga Road, Romulus;

Newsletter published by city, schools

"Around the City", a newsletter published jointly by the city of Romulus and the Romulus Community Schools, will be mailed quarterly to every household in the community beginning this week.

Jay Young, Romulus public information officer, will serve as editor of the new publication.

"The newsletter will contain six pages of news important to Romulus residents, including that pertaining to city and schools and place and time of local meetings to be held," Young explained.

He said costs of the publication and its mailing will be shared by the city and school system to give residents "greater utilization to their tax dollars".

An example of how the new periodical can serve Romulus citizens was cited by Young.

"Those residents of Romulus who did not read about the recent reassessment of local property in the Roman were not aware of the resulting increase in their taxes. The city-school newsletter will appraise everyone in the community of this fact and many others," he said.

He said the newsletter was an outgrowth of suggestions made by the recently formed task force of city and school personnel several months ago.

Pick Folmar for fed body

Romulus City Clerk Leonard J. Folmar has been appointed to serve on the federal legislative committee of the International Institute of Municipal Clerks (IIMC).

The IIMC is the professional association of nearly 4,300 city, village, town and township clerks with membership in every state of the union.

IIMC President Rex E. Layton, who also is city clerk of Los Angeles, Calif., said he appointed Folmar because "he has the wisdom and experience to advise the association in the development of an effective and positive legislative program."

Layton said one of Folmar's responsibilities will be to review specific Federal legislative proposals which relate to the office of municipal clerk and the interest of local government and to recommend appropriate action to the IIMC executive committee and the IIMC membership.

Folmar, who has been city clerk of Romulus since May, 1970, has been a member of IIMC since 1972.

Building permits pass $6 million

A total of 70 building permits of all types resulting in $6,106,002.50 in construction was issued in June by the Romulus Building Department, according to Edward D. Fall, director.

Breakdown of permits and cost of each construction were: one-family houses-2, $74,000; alterations and additions-33, $153,312; garages and carports-15, $48,130; commercial-1, $100,000; industrial-4, $5,715,840; non-residential-6, $6,920.50; trailer pads-4, $7,800.

Included in the industrial, commercial and state, county and municipal building construction are: Aetna Cartage truck terminal, 9400 Inkster Rd.; party store, Hikmat Jarbou, 27427 Eureka Rd., $100,000; Detroit Water and Sewer Department pumping station and reservoir, 32280 Wick Rd., $3,838,500; Central Transport truck terminal, 29129 Ecorse Rd., $1,400,000.

North Jr. High Band gets top state mark

Richard Kruse, band director at North Jr. High School in Romulus, has good reason to be proud of his symphonic band.

In competition with more than 300 Class "A" bands last school year at Ann Arbor, the North Jr. Symphonic Band was one of only six bands to receive a first division rating at the District XII band festival.

As one of four Class "A" schools to be awarded the distinction in each of the last two school years, North Jr. High was the only school whose band is comprised of seventh and eighth grade students. The other three—Three Rivers, Lapeer Simmer and Chippewa Hills— all have ninth graders in their enrollments.

"This means that North Jr. High Symphonic Band has proven to be the best seventh and eighth grade band in the state of Michigan during the past two years," the director explained.

In District XII competition at Ida in Class "D", the North Jr. High Concert Band received three class I ratings and a class III rating.

Woman raps senior center, gives okay after talk

Communication, so often overlooked in this modern day and age, can prove quite effective when properly employed.

Muriel Boelter, 36633 Bibbins, Romulus, came to last Thursday's Romulus City Council session to do one thing — tell council members of she and her neighbor's opposition to a proposed high-rise senior citizen building near their residences.

To that end she handed in a petition with some 70 names of residents near Romulus Elementary School, on whose grounds the structure would be build northwest of Bibbins and Shook streets.

After she was through talking, council members informed her that the 2.4 acres of land was the most ideal site in the city for the senior citizen building because of its proximity to the business district, post office, bank and the present senior citizens drop-in center across the street.

After listening to council members, Mrs. Boelter reportedly left her petition with council, said it sounded okay to her and left.

City will buy leased computer for trade-in Romulus City Council voted unanimously to go along with a recommendation from the city's finance director to purchase one of the computers it is now leasing.

Larry Moore, in a letter earlier this month to council, stated that the lease on the second of two Nixdorf 820 computers had expired. Rather than pay $211.75 per month for the seven months he estimated the city would need it, he urged council to buy it outright for $1,950 now.

"I am assured we may trade in the machine for a credit of $1,500 on our new Burrough's. Therefore, it is my recommendation that we purchase the Nixdorf 820 from Funding Systems Leasing, to be resold at a later date," Moore's letter said.

The city is now in the process of purchasing a Burroughs B-80 Computer System and the $1,500 trade in would be applied to the purchase of the larger piece of equipment.

Sidewalk sales set

Belleville-Van Buren area shoppers can prepare themselves for a buying spree on special summer closeout bargains at sidewalk sales this coming weekend at Lakewood Shopping Center and the following weekend in downtown Belleville.

All stores will be open from 10 a.m. until 9 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday, July 20, 21 and 22 at the Lakewood Shopping Center, Rawsonville exit and I-94, according to Bob Fashbaugh, chairman.

Chiropractors seek patient funds

Three Romulus chiropractors, journeyed to Washington, D.C., to attend a four-day seminar early this month and while there joined more than 3,000 of their colleagues from across the nation to encourage federal legislation that would grant funds for chiropractic care similar to that

Extension Service, 4-H conduct horse ed day

There's plenty of horsing around going on as the Wayne County Cooperative Extension Service and the 4-H get together to sponsor a Horse Education Day today.

Two large horse rings will house the show, which will be held on county property on the east side of Merriman Road south of Michigan Avenue, between Michigan and Van Born Road.

Experience 4-H leaders will demonstrate riding techniques for both English and western styles, as well as show how to ride saddle seat, side saddle, hunt seat proper horse dressage and gate jumping in the former category.

If western is your pleasure than proper reining, speed of action, basics in equitation and pleasure riding will be demonstrated.

Surrounding the horse rings 4-H will provide booth demonstrations. 4-H information will explain proper grooming and care of your horse as well as personal safety while around a horse. These and other fun facts should prove useful to horse owners and anyone else interested in general horse maintenance. To top the event, special educational demonstrations on blacksmithing and handicapped riding will be shown.

The program is free to the public, and free parking will be available. The Horse Education Day will be from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. today.

For further information on the program contact James Jones at 721-6550.

State Fair entries sought

Entry forms for the 1978 Michigan State Fair have just rolled off the presses, according to State Fair officials, and are available to anyone who wants to enter an exhibit in one of the fair's thousands of categories.

Interested persons can obtain a premium list and entry forms by writing the Michigan State Fairgrounds, Detroit 48203, or by calling (313) 368-1000. Specify which of six premium books is needed.

The six premium books cover horse shows; livestock; poultry, rabbits, pigeons and caviars; agriculture, horticulture and floriculture; community arts and fine arts.

Anyone who has entered exhibits in the Fair during the past five years will receive premium books by mail without asking.

Deadline for returning entry forms in all categories except the horse shows is Aug. 1. The horse show entries will close July 25.

The 1978 Michigan State Fair will run 11 days—from Aug. 25 through Sept. 4 (Labor Day).

Prices have stayed the same as last year. Adult admission is $3. Children under 12, accompanied by an adult, will be admitted free throughout the fair.

Fair officials say they are hoping for another "barnburner" Michigan State Fair. The past two years have set State Fair records, with rising attendance and the highest gate revenues in fair history.

The Michigan State Fair, which was founded in 1849, is the oldest state fair in the nation.

Fair to expand specials

"Oh you kid" and "23 Skidoo" . . . Dig out Grandpa's coat and get ready for Roaring Twenties Day at the Michigan State Fair.

Roaring Twenties Day on Aug. 27 is a new addition this year to the fair's list of special days. As part of the festivities the fair is offering trophies and prizes of $100, $50 and $25 for the best group and the best individual costumes in the Roaring '20s style.

Judging will be on the basis of quality, authenticity and overall effectiveness of the costumes, according to Harold Arnoldi, the fair's director of special events. Participants also are invited to take part in that day's Fairground Parade at 3:30 p.m. that day.

The fair plans to continue Clowns Day, a highly popular event begun in 1976. On Clowns Day — Aug. 26 — trophies and cash prizes will be given for the best clown costumes and clown acts.

Persons interested in joining either contest should apply ahead of time by contacting the Michigan State Fair Department of Special Events, Detroit 48203, or call 368-1000.

The Michigan State Fair is 129 years old — the oldest state fair in the nation. The 1978 Fair opens Aug. 25 and runs through Labor Day, Sept. 4.

Channel 56 rebroadcasts court dramas

Channel 56 will rebroadcast three famous courtroom cases covering the topics of abortion, rape and murder on Tuesdays at 9 p.m., starting Aug. 1.

The first drama, on Aug. 1, is "The Edelin Conviction," the case of the Boston doctor charged with manslaughter after performing a legal abortion.

The trial of Dr. Kenneth Edelin received nationwide attention, and the eventual guilty verdict was used as a test case of the Supreme Court decision that overturned the state's laws governing abortion. The dramatic re-enactment of "The Edelin Conviction" won top honors in the Corporation for Public Broadcasting's local program awards.

The next trial dramatization, at 9 p.m. Aug. 8, is titled "The People vs. Inez Garcia." The program is based on actual courtroom records involving the trial of Inez Garcia, who was found guilty of murdering the accomplice of the man she accused of her rape.

The original trial was a cause celebre for the women's movement, and it posed a vital question of concern to men and women: "Is rape a justification for murder?"

The last in the courtroom series, on Aug. 15, at 9 p.m., is the famous "TV intoxication" murder case called "TV on Trial." This program will present two-hours of actual trial proceedings of the Ronney Zamora murder case.

This trial received national attention because the defense attorney argued that the 15-year-old Zamora was not guilty in the murder of an elderly woman because he was subject to "TV intoxication." The lawyer argued that Zamora had watched so much television during his life that he could no longer separate fact from fantasy.

When it was first aired on Channel 56 in May of this year, the program became one of the most widely watched on the station that month, according to the Nielsen ratings, and many requests for transcripts came in from viewers.

Although not part of the Tuesday night trial series, Channel 56 also will be presenting a new program concerning the controversy that still surrounds the death sentence of Julius and Ethel Rosenberg more than 25 years ago. "The Rosenberg-Sobell Case Revisited" will be seen Aug. 17 at 8:30 p.m.

Judicial legislating, officials to blame

Who makes the laws which govern our to day life in this system referred to as a democracy?

If you were to ask that question on the street corners of this country, the most likely answer you would receive would be, "our elected representatives." But is that really true?

At one time in this nation's history, the lawmakers elected by the people were most certainly the ones who were developing and implementing new laws. But today, more often than not, it is the judicial branch of government that has taken on that responsibility through the ever broadening scope of judicial responsibility which most courts feel a requirement to address.

Apparently gone forever are the days when the people of this country, through their elected representatives, could seek and gain new laws which they collectively felt were in the best interests of the majority. In place of that democratic procedure called representative government, we now find a situation existing whereby the judicial system is exerting a growing influence on the general direction of our society.

And that direction, whether good or bad in the eye of the observer, is the direction the country must now take regardless of the will of the majority.

What has brought about the new trend in our democratic system is the apparent unwillingness of elected officials to tackle the difficult issues which face a nation trying to wrestle with its conscience while still pursuing a world-wide leadership role.

The new direction taken by government and the increasing role of the judicial system in formulating law has had less of an effect on the national level than it has on the local level in general.

On the local level, the encroachment of the judicial branch of government into the business of law-making has been near disastrous.

Hardly a day passes without the necessity of a legal opinion from someone in the newest area of law, those attorneys who have recognized the growing trend away from decision making by elected leaders. Add to that the growing trend of dissatisfied elected officials who challenge the action of their colleagues, and we find ourselves in the middle of a real dilemma.

Probably the reason for the drift away from some of the principles which have been guiding our government in the past has come as a result of the more complex issues facing elected leaders today. But to a large extent, the unwillingness of the elected leaders themselves to establish firm positions on pressing issues is also responsible.

Politics was at one time looked upon as the noblist profession. Today, citizens rate their elected officials slightly higher than organized crime, and slightly below parole violators. We feel that the reason for the dramatic change in attitude of the citizen toward his representative is the direct result of the change in the concept of politics.

Politics was considered at one time to be nothing more than the art of compromise. Seldom were the politician's motives questioned. There existed genuine feeling that most elected officials were giving more than they were receiving, and disputes arose only because of the differing viewpoints held by those people who were trying to gain the most for those who elected them. But it was conceded that in general, politicians would fight Satan himself for a program they felt worthwhile, but following that fight, adjourn the meeting to the nearest pub for a blow by blow replay of the battle, with a toast to the winner and the loser.

Replaced today, that spirit of 'win some-lose some', has been relegated to our history books. In place of that concept, we now find our politicians questioning the motives and morals of anyone with the audacity to question their judgment.

No longer does the elected official accept the loss of a program or ordinance without looking for a face saving exit from the scene of defeat.

And too often that exit has become nothing more than the entrance to an attorney's office. A last chance at vindication for one's position.

We at Associated Newspapers feel that it is time for the locally elected officials to put aside their reliance on the judicial for the resolution of legislative problems.

It is becoming apparent that the courtrooms of America are readily accepting the responsibility for legislating, that responsibility which elected officials are thrusting upon it.

Let's remove "get a legal opinion" from the vocabulary of our politicians, and we will all be better represented.

that the foregoing comments paint all elected officials with the same broad brush, that is intended.

We have provided, within our pages, space for those elected officials to use in the quest to keep the public more informed on the process of government. With but few exceptions, public officials have not utilized that space to its best advantage, nor have the citizens of the community engaged in any serious dialogue with those officials.

We would encourage both citizens and their elected officials to take advantage of our offer of space within our pages for the serious discussion of today's important issues.

Product liability revisions eyed by State House

By EDWARD E. MAHALAK
State Representative
38th District

Legislation designed to avert the loss of small manufacturing businesses in Michigan by limiting their liability for product defects to three years has been approved by the House and sent to the Senate for consideration in the fall.

The bill (HB 5189) would amend the Revised Judicature Act to establish guidelines for product liability actions and to revise the statute of limitations concerning them. The bill would apply to any legal action because of a death or injury to a person or property alleged to be caused by a product or part of a product.

Product liability provisions would apply not only to the manufacture of the product itself, but also to its construction, design, formula, development standards, production, inspection, testing, listing, certification, warning, instructions, marketing, advertising, packaging or labeling.

Under the proposal, evidence that a particular product presumably met safety standards will be admissible in a court case. Also, in a case involving a product's safety, a person could get an award, even if the person was partially at fault in an accident because of negligence. In such circumstances, however, any award will be reduced by the degree of negligence involved.

Cases involving injuries or death must be brought within three years after the accident, the bill stipulates. A three-year statute of limitations is also stipulated for basic product liability cases.

Also, if a product had been used for more than ten years, it would no longer be presumed safe. A person then would have to prove that a specific defect in the product was responsible for any injury or death.

To guard against nuisance suit claims, a judge finds frivolous can be dismissed, with legal fees assessed against the party bringing the suit.

A companion measure, mandating that insurance companies report premiums collected for product liability insurance was also approved. The bill requires insurance companies, in their annual reports, to list the premiums collected and losses incurred for product liability insurance. The insurance company will also have to break down the premium figures to show what percentages went for losses, taxes, commission, etc.

Materials on any complaint seeking damages against a policy because of injuries would also be required. An insurance company would have to file a report on a defective product with the Insurance Bureau within 30 days after filing and answer to a complaint in court.

The bills were drafted after a series of public hearings and discussions were held with lawyers, insurance officials and business leaders on the difficulties in obtaining product liability insurance.

The measure should give manufacturers and business leaders more opportunity to protect themselves in court, while also allowing consumers the right to make legitimate complaints. Also, the bills should help make product liability insurance more available and at a lower rate.

The House has also passed a bill permitting job applicants to refuse to take a lie detector test without jeopardizing his or her chances of obtaining the job. Some businesses now use the test as a condition of employment to locate corporate thieves.

The bill allows firms to offer applicants a lie detector test, but it also allows the applicants to refuse to take the test without penalty.

The House has also passed a bill permitting job applicants to refuse to take a lie detector test without jeopardizing his or her chances of obtaining the job. Some businesses now use the test as a condition of employment to locate corporate thieves.

Both houses have passed and sent to the Governor legislation allowing employees to examine their personnel records.

An employee would have the right to see material which could affect promotions, transfers, raises or disciplinary action. Employees also have the right to buy copies of the materials and to respond to any materials they feel are unfair or incorrect.

The bill also prohibits employers from keeping records on an employee's outside political activities.

This proposal is the most far-reaching bill of its kind in the country. It was carefully worked out to be fair to both employers and employees.

An extended, but modified probationary period for young drivers was okayed by the House. The bill does not change the current one-year probation for new drivers, but adds a modified probation for the next two years.

Under the modified probation, a young driver's license cannot be called in unless the youth gets six points, a single four-point violation, three tickets, a ticket or at fault accident or any accident involving alcohol. The bill is designed to let new drivers develop good driving habits, while getting the bad young drivers off the road.

Petition gripes

To the Editor:

I wonder if any other people got their tax cut petitions returned to them because they were torn in the mails and were undeliverable?

Of course, the post office had to snoop through the petition to find my address but then how can they be prosecuted for that?

Sorry neighbors. Let's hope enough got through to make the November ballot, anyway.

Pet rescuers thanked

To the Editor:

Just a note of thanks to express our appreciation for the quick action by Mr. Jerry Maton and his two fellow workers.

On May 31, Mr. Maton and his workers were able to rescue our neighbor's cat from the top of a sixty foot Detroit Edison pole.

The animal had been stranded atop the pole for two days, and it is not likely that it could have lasted much longer.

Dear Mr. Bradley,

First I want to apologize for being so late in writing. Please don't let it take any importance from my "Thank You".

The article you wrote for Bilmar's Supermarket on our family was well written and in very good taste. We are grateful for your time and effort. Many customers commented on what a nice article it was and that's exactly what we thought.

Also, the article you wrote on your wedding anniversary in tribute to your lovely wife made you stand very tall in my estimation.

If we could get across to the young people of today these important factors of purity and total commitment, we wouldn't have so many unhappy people in this world.

May God bless you and use you in His service to honor and glorify Him.

Citizen muscle 13-foot tall

By DENNIS FASSETT
Managing Editor

As the result of the many requests we had received, the decision was made to provide our readers with a copy of the much talked about Tisch Petition. And that decision started the phones at Associated Newspapers ringing.

Most of the callers were requesting information about where to take the completed petitions. Others wanted to know where the local Tisch Tax Cut offices were located, and still others wanted further information about the Tisch proposal.

Although we had been told there was a local Tisch office in Wayne, no address or phone number had been available, so in order to get some of the information that our callers were requesting, I jumped into the car and drove to the reported site of the Michigan movement to cut property taxes.

The austere interior of the building which was normally used to conduct auctions, contained only two desks, a few chairs and a bulletin board devoted to the progress of the Tisch petition drive.

Behind those desks were four rather haggard looking people who had been at the job too long and with insufficient sleep.

Only a few people were milling around the office, and the general impression it gave was one of desperation. Help, help signs ringed the desks that were piled with the Tisch Petitions, while workers carefully checked each petition for signatures and other details the law requires.

Vicki Wolford and Holland Sanders were manning the desk I approached.

"How's it going?" I asked Mrs. Wolford. "We're tired," she replied "I have been at the desk for 20 hours of the past 24, and I'm tired but not quitting."

While I was talking to Mrs. Wolford, two people came into the office each carrying a handful of petitions.

"How many signatures do you now have?" I asked. "At last count they told us we were up to 240,000," she said. "They have been coming in at about 7,000 per hour today."

"Why didn't you call us at Associated Newspapers and tell us where interested readers could contact your organization?" I asked.

"Well we did try to call you once," she said, "but there had been no answer, I guess maybe we are not as organized as we should be." A definite understatement, I thought. Anyone wishing to observe a real "grass roots" operation could use the Tisch organization as the model for all others.

Unlike the slick, high-priced public relations generated by the Taxpayers United for Tax Limitation group out of Southfield, the Tisch people more resembled a collection of fervent anti-porn people who were all convinced that citizen might would make taxes right.

But in spite of the appearance of doing everything wrong, poor public relations, no organization, and lack of sleep, two days after my visit to the store front operation known as the Tisch Tax Cut headquarters (the store front is once again back in the auction business), the Tisch group entered Lansing in a motorcade and deposited with the Secretary of State 327,000 signatures endorsing the Tisch 50 percent property tax cut proposal. (266,000 valid signatures are needed to place the question on November's ballot.)

While the Secretary of State begins the process of verifying the signatures on the more than 17,000 individual petitions which if stacked 100 to the inch would make a pile 13 feet high, the rest of us will be taking a closer look at the real meaning of the proposed Tisch Amendment.

Should the petitions be certified by the state and the question placed on the fall ballot, we can expect a media blitz in opposition to the amendment which will most probably cost one-thousand times the $3,000 spent by the Tisch group to bring the question to the State's voters.

If the more moderate tax proposals already certified by the state have turned state educators green, the Tisch amendment will certainly turn them pure white. But one thing is for sure. Tax Revolt has come to Michigan.

Wise men had better accept that reality and adopt a new philosophy.

How about one which would consider who will have to pay for any new and grand schemes.

"A state satellite indeed!"

Election year communications

Thank heaven for election years.

It appears to us at Associated Newspapers that without the political scramble witnessed each election year, the average citizen would have no idea what his representative in government stood for.

For some mysterious reason, the infectious epidemic of lockjaw which affects the elected leaders of our communities and state seems to abate substantially every other even year. And, if you have reason to wish to participate in representative government, that is the time most likely to elicit some response from your elected officials.

While it may appear on the surface

Mother's Day every day

By JOYCE HAGELTHORN

Mother's Day for young mothers is a day to be endured.

Since I'm no longer a young mother, this last Mother's Day found me relaxed and enjoying the peace and quiet, when the telephone rang and my young daughter-in-law's voice came sobbing over the wires.

"The awfulest thing happened. I wish I had a hole to put my head in and stay there forever," she wailed, and through her muffled sobs I finally caught her ear.

"Well, you see, Mom," she said, "after I ate the burned eggs and stuff I thought how beautiful it would be to take the two little ones to church."

The two little ones are almost two and four, and as I held the telephone next to my ear and listened to her sobs, I could visualize what she was going to say.

"Did they drink the holy water?" I asked.

"Worse than that," she wailed.

"See, there I was, holding them in church and they were being so good, Mom. I was so proud of them. And then a little kid in front of us started making faces at them and Danny gave him the raspberry...right in church, Mom. Oh God. I could have died. And then the baby started to bawl. So I took them down to the 'crying room' and all the kids were crying, and I thought I could get plenty of that stuff at home. So I took them upstairs and stood in the vestibule listening to the services, and Billy got away and began scrambling up the wall and that turned Danny on, and he began trying to scale the front, and just then a young minister came over and said "Can I help you with the children?"

And then she began to sob again.

"And Mom...when he said that I grabbed those two kids off the ceiling and said, 'I'm going to murder these kids...so help me I'm going to murder them any minute!'"

"What did the minister do?" I whispered.

"He just stood there and stared at me, and I was so shocked at myself! What will he ever think of a mother saying something like that in church on Mother's Day!"

"He probably understood you were at your wit's end," I told her. "He probably has seen other mothers getting nervous in church with their kids. He probably didn't think anything of it."

"Oh yeah?" my little girl answered.

"Then how come he started administering the last rites."

On the Brighter Side

Newspaper credibility

By JIM BRADLEY

The scene was a newspaper office with four men grouped around a desk.

One veteran reporter was dummying pages for the next edition while the others stood in a circle discussing an important story.

"We're going to have to hold up that story until we can verify some facts," said the sun tanned man in the brown suit.

"That's the best reason I know of," I responded automatically.

And the thought struck home to me how vital it is that newspaper writers, of all people, must be unshakable pillars of integrity in the shifting sands of today's morality.

It seems that in years past that a "man's word was his bond." People told the truth and commonly took it for granted that others would keep their spoken word to them. Today, it seems, that many tell the truth as long as they have to, or as long as it's convenient.

Such is not the case with newspapers. God help us if we ever lose the freedom of the press. And, likewise, God forbid that newspapers abuse their liberty and fail to live up to their high calling of always telling both sides of every issue.

I mentioned to the man in the brown suit how impressed I was with a recent political candidate I had spoken with at some length.

"You don't believe what politicians say, do you?" he replied, and I couldn't figure whether he was saying it facetiously or not.

"I do until he gives me reason to believe otherwise," I affirmed.

"Newspaper people are the only ones with 100 percent credibility," he rejoined, stroking back his light blond hair.

He said it in such a tone of voice that I wasn't quite sure whether he was serious or just lifting the ego of those gathered around the desk.

But his point was not lost on me.

As I drove home, the vital importance of truth repeatedly circulated through my thoughts. Later that night I attended a city council meeting and listened for more than three hours as local citizens spoke on a multitude of issues. It was not a little disconcerting how often the words 'rumors', 'scuttlebutt', and 'hearsay' fell from the lips of various speakers.

Those of one persuasion often accused others of not knowing, or not speaking, the truth. The others responded in similar fashion.

After the meeting, several people gathered around me as we discussed the events of the council meeting and some stories that had appeared in the previous week's newspaper.

It was ironic, in an unusual way, that most of those who spoke with me said they were not in complete agreement with the stories that appeared.

One man, who I met for the first time, said he was a little ashamed to read what some of his companions were quoted as saying. "I'm tempted to write a letter to your newspaper and tell things exactly as I feel," he said in a very courteous manner.

"I wish you would," I replied, "that's what this is all about." I also offered to quote him in a story and let him speak his views.

Another man came up and said, "Your story about — was not correct, because I know for a fact that —", and he went on to explain his position.

"Just one minute," I countered. "All I did was quote people of the city and let them tell the story in their words," I reminded him.

"Alright," he reluctantly agreed, "but you weren't told the truth." Then he proceeded to tell me his version of what happened.

Later, I checked with the source that was quoted in the earlier story and he insisted things were as he told them to me.

Several others shared their viewpoints with me, striving to get their points across to the newspaperman. And I felt good about that. Because after all, the local newspaper is the sentinel of liberty and a voice of the people—all the people.

Calling the local newspaper a "sentinel of liberty" may sound a little corny and trite—but it's the truth and a cornerstone of our freedom.

Someone has said you cannot enslave a Bible reading people, and the same goes for newspaper reading people. God forbid that honest, local newspapers ever become extinct.

Because a part of liberty dies each time a newspaper closes its doors.

Health Beat

'You thought you'd seen it all and then...'

By RUSS TUTTLE
Director, Community Relations
Peoples Community Hospital Authority

After one has been to the top of Pikes Peak, there is a tendency to assume that you have seen it all.

Not so.

One afternoon we drove from our hotel to the Cheyenne Mountain range — a distance of only 10 miles. The Cheyenne range does not have any peaks which compare to Pikes. But, there is something else; it's called the Cheyenne Canyon.

As you enter the canyon — it runs for maybe five miles to a dead end — you see a sign posted by the State of Colorado which warns sightseers that rocks and other debris may fall on your head and do you great bodily harm. Therefore, you are welcome, but you enter at your own risk. That makes you gulp a little.

You move into the canyon and are surrounded by huge stands of giant evergreens. About 100 yards through the trees, you come to the opening, and find yourself being dwarfed by walls of stone reaching into the sky.

The stones are variously colored, mostly though, reds and yellows. Some huge boulders weighing hundreds of tons seem precariously balanced and prepared at any moment to come crashing down on the automobiles or hikers 1000 feet below.

Driving through the canyon is also an illuminating experience. The road is quite narrow. On your side going in, you feel squeezed against the stone wall. On the other side of the road coming out, your tires ride within a foot or two of a drop-off which culminates in an icy stream.

You approach a sharp turn (the sign says, 'Blind Turn, Sound Horn Before Proceeding') and navigate around very happy that your tooted horn was not answered by another car coming out.

There are places where the road widens sufficiently to allow you to park and get out of your car to take pictures or just stare in awe at the marvel of creation surrounding you. Insignificant? You bet you are.

At the end of the canyon, the road widens considerably. Again, you feel as if you have probably seen it all. Again, you are wrong.

Next on the agenda of spectacles are the Seven Falls. This marvel is seven individual cascades which rush down from the top of the canyon in a zig-zag pattern. It's pure spring water with a touch of melting snow blended in for flavor. Thankfully, man has not yet taken a notion to improve upon nature at these falls, and the icy cold water is sweet and delightful.

At the bottom of the last falls, the water empties into a large mountain pool which extends possibly 200 yards along the canyon wall and must be 25 yards across. The water is absolutely clear, and is only four or five feet deep.

As you stand and look at the water, your eyes will bug out if you are a fisherman. Cruising through this tarn are huge rainbow glisten through the clear water, and you thirst to get out your fishing tackle. Alas, it's not allowed here. These fish, and some of the rainbow must weigh between three and five pounds, are protected by the State. If you want to fish, you must pack in and climb to the top of the falls to some of the originating waters. Someday, I'm going to do just that!

And chipmunks, also known as ground squirrels, abound. Indeed, they hang around a ledge and sit up like trained dogs as you feed them peanuts.

Most remarkable, I thought. Here are wild creatures neither afraid of man nor hostile. It would certainly be delightful if we could always cohabitate with the other elements of nature. We seem either to frighten each other, or we attack and try to kill each other. How dumb!

And it's something along that line I've been trying to express these past two weeks as I've written about just a tiny portion of our great Western United States.

Man, I'm afraid, just spends too much time fretting about insignificant nonsense and not enough time appreciating the beauty and tranquility of nature which is his for only the asking.

We like to express health as numbers on a blood pressure reading, or blood counts, or respiration rates. Those things, of course, are vital to good health. However, just as vital is a clear head, an understanding of your role in society, and an ability to disregard the impossible while accepting the inevitable.

You might be surprised, but a satisfying state of mental health can have a profound effect on physical health.

Sky-high eateries have bird's eye view of Michigan

(Note: "Sky-high and Airport Dining" is the eighth in a series of 15 weekly articles on "Offbeat Michigan." These features are designed to encourage Michigan tourism and near-home travel.)

"A table by the window, please" is a request guaranteed to make dining out in Michigan an adventure at a restaurant high atop a building or at an airport terminal.

Sky-high restaurants which revolve to give diners a well-rounded look at metropolitan Detroit are the Summit on the 71st floor of the Renaissance Center's Detroit Plaza Hotel and the Holiday Inn of Southfield's Ronde-View and the Hyatt Regency of Dearborn's Rotunda, both 16 floors up.

It takes about one hour for the restaurants to make a circle.

There are several sky-high eateries which have great views but don't budge an inch. Detroit's Top of the Pontch on the 25th floor of the Pontchartrain Hotel overlooks the Detroit River, while the Fogcutter in the People's Bank Building in Port Huron is high above the St. Clair River. Both restaurants overlook Canada.

Others great for ship-watching are the Top of the Park at the Park Place Motor Inn overlooking Grand Traverse Bay and the Crow's Nest in the Old Marquette Inn at Marquette, offering a bird's-eye view of Lake Superior.

In Southfield, nighttime diners at the Coach and Four in Stouffer's Northland Inn are fascinated by the twinkling lights of the metropolitan freeway system. The University of Michigan campus is the panorama seen through the windows of the Sandalwood Restaurant and Lounge at the Ann Arbor Inn.

The Grand River's meandering path through the city and surrounding countryside can be traced by diners at two 10th floor eateries in Grand Rapids—the Pantlind Hotel's Penthouse and the Finial (meaning crowning ornament), atop the Union Bank Building.

Giant jets take off and land in full view of diners at Detroit Metropolitan Airport in Romulus. The Metro Airport runways can be seen from two dining spots—the Innkeeper Restaurant at the Host International Hotel or the Michigan Host Coffee House in the South Terminal.

At Oakland Pontiac Airport, small planes taxi almost to the door of the Voyager Restaurant and businessmen can be seen arriving and departing in company jets.

Other airport terminal restaurants include Sonny's Weather Station at Detroit City Airport, the Press Box Too at Muskegon County Airport and Prophet Foods at Capital City Airport in Lansing.

Two restaurants bearing the Golden Eagle name are at Kent County International Airport in Grand Rapids and at St. Clair County International Airport in Port Huron.

Other appropriately named restaurants include the Prop-Stop at Kirsch Municipal Airport in Sturgis, the Coldwater Airport Inn at Branch County Memorial Airport, the Kitty Hawk at Kellogg Regional Airport in Battle Creek and the Sky Room at Freeland's Tri-City Airport.

The Wheelmakers at Flint's Bishop Airport is a tribute to the city's automotive history.

Plan ahead

Kensington Metropark near Milford has only limited space available for additional requests for picnic space several days this summer.

According to Charles A. Damm, park superintendent, there it already is heavy demand for picnic space on Sunday, July 22, July 29 and Aug. 6. This is due to large group picnics and several areas, not normally assigned for picnic use, already are scheduled.

Groups of 50 or more persons are advised to contact the park, if they plan to use picnic space on those days. Phone Kensington Metropark at 685-1561 (Milford).

Boats' wake poses hazard

As we quickly move into summer's boating season there are many hazards that are of a recurring nature. One of these hazards is wakes from boats.

Marines, boat docks, refueling stations, public boat ramps, all require passing boats to slow their speed. Boaters are responsible for the damage that their boat's wake causes. Big wakes can cause docked boats damage. So mind your wake.

While on the water you also need to be aware of what another boat's wake can do to you. A big wake from a passing boat can catch the casual drift fisherman by surprise and put him in the drink. So mind the other guy's wake.

Small vessels may not, by the rules of the road, hamper the navigation of a larger vessel in a narrow channel when the larger vessel can only navigate safely inside the channel.

All mariners should reduce speed when maneuvering in areas where small boats are operating. Be considerate of the other guy this summer. Drive safely while on the water, and remember, mind your wake.

To five metroparks

SEMTA-DOT team up on bus service

The Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority (SEMTA) and Detroit Department of Transportation (D-DOT) will provide public transportation service to five area metroparks—Metropolitan Beach, Kensington, Lower Huron, Stoney Creek and Willow — effective immediately.

Metropark bus service will be in operation weekdays between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. and 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. and weekends between 9 a.m. and 9 p.m. Round trip bus fares are $1.10 per person when paid in advance and $1.25 (in cash) when paid the day of the trip.

Metroparks offer a range of activities including biking, hiking, sports, swimming, picnic areas and nature trails.

Arrangements for the special metropark bus service may be made by calling SEMTA, for suburban residents, at 362-1160; or for Detroit residents, D-DOT at 224-1550.

This service is "demand-planned," which means passengers must call a central dispatch number of to make a trip request, and the reservation agent will schedule the trip. Reservations, or cancellations, must be made at least 48 hours in advance for weekday outings, and 72 hours in advance for weekend trips. All reservations will be taken on a first come-first serve basis. Groups will be combined with other groups or individuals as needed.

To arrange a trip the following steps are recommended:

(1) Call the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority to determine which park has features attractive to you or your group. The phone number is 961-5865.

(2) Choose three or four alternative dates and times which would be convenient for you.

(3) Determine the number of individuals in your group and the name of the contact person and telephone number.

(4) Determine a central pick-up and drop-off location which your group can use. Individuals will be directed to a convenient central location to restrict the number of stops and make the trip as short as possible.

(5) Call the appropriate reservation agent. If the trip begins in Detroit call 224-1550 (D-DOT). If the trip begins in the suburbs call 362-1160 or 362-1161 (SEMTA).

Special set for political prisoners

"Night of the Empty Chairs," a tribute to political prisoners around the world, starring Richard Widmark, Lauren Bacall, Arlo Guthrie, Studs Terkey and others, will be seen on Channel 56 Sunday at 10 p.m.

The program, hosted by columnist Art Buchwald, recognizes the men and women throughout the world who have been harassed and punished for their political beliefs. The freedom these individuals have forfeited and the art they have produced is dramatized by filling in the empty chairs onstage (the empty chairs symbolizing political imprisonment) with celebrity stand-ins.

The stars of the show, also including Arlo Guthrie, Studs Terkel, Patti Smith, Vincent Gardenia and Leonard Bernstein, will perform works produced by the political dissenters ranging from plays to music to poetry.

"Night of the Empty Chairs" was taped last November at a benefit for Amnesty International. This organization seeks to help the prisoners of conscience who are confined, tortured and humiliated because they expressed their protest through art. Through the performance of this art Amnesty International hopes to keep alive the spirit of their protest.

The Garden Doctor Says...

This week the Garden Doctor talks about:

Q: Our compost pile smells awful during rainy weather. Can this be prevented?

A: Compost that has an odor needs aeration. Turn the pile to alleviate compaction. Mixing coarse material with wet material that's likely to compact will help provide air spaces. An example is to mix hedge trimmings with grass clippings. A quick way to suppress odors is to put an inch or two of soil over the entire pile.

Q: We planted a maple tree last fall. This spring it put out leaves, but they're small and sparse. What does it need?

A: It probably only needs to develop a larger root system. Small leaves and fewer leaves are common for the first couple of years after transplanting. Just keep the soil moist this summer and don't use fertilizer until the tree has been there for one year. A trunk wrap should be left on for at least one year.

Will I always remember him?
Remembering the deceased is a way of keeping a loved one always alive in your mind.
The full-service funeral is the traditional and time-proven way of making sure your memories are psychologically sound. A full service with your mutual friends and relatives present gives you a final memory of lasting value.
While the immediate memory may be a painful one after the death of a loved one, this poem may give you a new view.

As long as memory recalls,
those who die may live,
Until our mind's eye dims,
Immortality we give.

Equal pay for equal work...

Equal pay for equal work. With that being today's byword on the job market, Plymouth-Canton School District officials contend that, too, is their goal.

"We don't discriminate against men and women," said John Sandmann.

In a mini survey conducted by the Metropolitan Detroit Bureau of School Statistics 43 high schools in the metro-area responded to the questionnaire.

The intent of the questionnaire was to determine how many, if any, high schools have or are entangled in disputes over wages paid to male and female coaches for sports events and clubs.

Sandmann said that when there are duplicate sports the wages paid are equal. "For instance with basketball, swimming and tennis we have a girls' team and a boys' team. The coaches get paid the same amount then," he said.

But for sports such as football, weight lifting and wrestling where only the males are in competition, he says there is obviously no need for parity pay.

"I think for the most part we're as fair as we can be," he said.

He said that except for experience and seniority variables, the pay scales are equal. Although he said that the school officials are allowed to pay on a pro-rata basis in taking into account the length of the season the sport is played.

Years ago, school officials used to seriously consider the number of hours spent coaching, but today that item has been buried along with the sex, race and religion factors, says Sandmann.

The pay is not determined by the size of the teams, the hours of practice, the revenue generated, or by the number of games and events, according to Sandmann's response to the survey.

"We never ever paid boy or girl coaches more or less by the amount of spectator attendance. That wouldn't be fair," he explained.

If that were the case in the Plymouth-Canton schools, he noted that for example a boys' basketball coach would have a hefty paycheck, while the girls' coach would be left with a shoe ring salary.

On the average there may be 5,000 to 6,000 spectators that turn out for boys' basketball events, yearly while the girls' basketball games only attract 400 to 500 people for a year.

However there were some schools that reported using the spectator attendance as part of their evaluation. Only one school said that it was a critical part of their evaluation.

Four schools said it was "important" and 13 schools listed the public interest as a consideration in determining pay scale.

When schools were asked if they had any legal disputes over wages paid to boy and girl coaches, two schools said they had court litigation. Two schools said they had grievances arbitrated, and two said they had a grievance with the Department of Labor.

Plymouth-Canton Schools have renegotiated their wages paid to coaches to conform with Title IX guidelines. Title IX requirements is legislation to ensure against discrimination of race, creed, color or sex.

There were 26 schools that have conformed to the guidelines, according to the survey. Nine schools answered saying they have not.

Sandmann said that there have been no labor disputes over pay scales for coaches in the Plymouth-Canton School District.

Proposition 13, taxpayers' revolt will be subject of EMU seminar

Political leaders supposedly have been "sent a message" from a disgruntled middle class. Governors and legislators in the 50 states are watching intently as officials in California try to cope with a property tax cut in half while proposals for tax limitation spring up in their own states. Howard Jarvis and company boasts that for the first time, we have government of, by and for the people.

With the passage of Proposition 13 in California, and the possible enactment of similar measures in other states, many are asking how all of this will effect the kind of government we will have in the future.

A seminar, to be conducted at Eastern Michigan University this fall, will attempt to find some of the answers. "The Politics of Tax Revolt," which will be taught by political science professor Lewis G. Bender, will examine the nature of the "revolt," the implications it may have on the services that government will offer and the ramifications tax limiting measures may have on how governments will be structured in years to come.

When I heard the idea for a seminar on this issue, I sparked into it right away," Bender said. "It seemed like a good idea to start talking about Proposition 13 and the tax revolt in particular, and the ramifications on local and state government in general."

According to Bender, one of the major problems of government today, and a primary focus of the course, is the "general fragmentation" of all units and levels of government.

"It is not a politicians' problem as much as it is a problem of our demands. We demand that we not be bitten by mosquitoes, we demand we have fresh air, we demand that we have good schools and clean streets," Bender said. "The way that governments have reacted to these demands, the way that politicians have reacted, is to create new mechanisms to deal with a new problem, you double your costs."

Bender said the "tax revolt" may change some of that, causing more centralization of government, "more cleaning up of government," to cut down costs. But it also could render local government impotent and totally dependent on state and federal government.

"One of the most disastrous ramifications would be if this revolt became a national trend with revenues being cut drastically at the local level, bringing us to a point where the federal government subsidizes states totally. Federalism could become a myth. It would be a unitary form of government with local and state governments operating as administrative agencies of the federal government," said Bender.

Bender hopes to have local government officials speak to the class on the tax revolt issue, and perhaps have the authors of tax limiting measures in Michigan, Richard Headlee and Robert Tisch, come to the class.

The seminar is a two-credit hour course and is open to students who have taken a beginning political science course. For registration information, call the Registration Office at (313) 487-2300.

Film festival to show Irish movie, 'Playboy'

A beautiful, lyrical movie from Ireland, "Playboy of the Western World," has its Channel 56 premiere on "Film Festival with Paul Winter" Aug. 5 at 10 p.m.

The plot of the movie concerns a young stranger who becomes the idol of a small town. Weary and dishevelled, Christy Mahon stumbles into a remote inn in the County of Mayo on the Irish coast.

Christy claims he has murdered his tyrant father and the innkeeper's daughter is enthralled by his captivating story. The daughter is soon in love with the young stranger and, with equal speed, Christy becomes the idol of all the local girls — including a husband-hungry woman called Widow Quinn.

Critics of the movie, when it was released in 1962, stated that the storyline of the movie was less important than the soaring, poetic language of the film. "Playboy of the Western World" stars Siobhan McKenna and Gary Raymond.

Mahalak: House backs product liability bill

Legislation designed to avert the loss of small manufacturing businesses in Michigan by limiting their liability for product defects to three years has been approved by the House and sent to the Senate for consideration in the fall, according to State Rep. Edward Mahalak (D-38th District). The bill (HB 5189) would amend the Revised Judicature Act to establish guidelines for product liability actions and to revise the statute of limitations concerning them. The bill would apply to any legal action because of a death or injury to a person or property alleged to be caused by a product or part of a product.

Product liability provisions would apply not only to the manufacture of the product itself, but also to its construction, design, formula, development standards, production, inspection, testing, listing, certification, warning, instructions, marketing, advertising, packaging or labeling, Mahalak explained.

Under the proposal, evidence that a particular product presumably met safety standards will be admissible in a court case, he added. Also, in a case involving a product's safety, a person could get an award, even if the person was partially at fault in an accident because of negligence. In such circumstances, however, any award will be reduced by the degree of negligence involved.

Cases involving injuries or death must be brought within three years after the accident, the bill stipulates. A three-year statute of limitations is also stipulated for basic product liability cases.

If a product had been used for more than ten years, it would no longer be presumed safe. A person then would have to prove that a specific defect in the product was responsible for any injury or death, he added.

The bills were drafted after a series of... hearings...

To guard against nuisance suit claims, a case can be dismissed, with legal fees assessed against the party bringing the suit, the Romulus Democrat continued.

A companion measure, mandating that insurance companies report premiums collected for product liability insurance also was approved. The bill requires insurance companies, in their annual reports, to list the premiums collected and losses incurred for product liability insurance. The insurance company also will have to break down the premium figures to show what percentages went for losses, taxes, commission, etc.

Materials on any complaint seeking damages against a policy because of injuries would also be required, Mahalak said. An insurance company would have to file a report on a defective product with the Insurance Bureau within 30 days after filing an answer to a complaint in court.

The bills were drafted after a series of public hearings and discussions were held with lawyers, insurance officials and business leaders on the difficulties in obtaining product liability insurance, Mahalak explained.

"The measure should give manufacturers and business leaders more opportunity to protect themselves in court, while also allowing consumers the right to make legitimate complaints," he said.

"The bills also should help make product liability insurance more available and at a lower rate."

EMT graduates

With the graduation of Oakwood Hospital's fifth class of Emergency Medical Technicians, the Sumpter Township Fire Department added two employees, trained in emergency lifesaving measures, to its ranks. Diplomas were awarded to Diana Kalasz (second from right) and Martin Kalasz (right), both of Belleville. The cousins received diplomas, certifying their completion of the four-month, 120-hour program, taught by volunteer Oakwood physicians and technicians. Congratulating the twosome are Gerald D. Fitzgerald, executive vice-president of Oakwood Hospital, and Audrey Seay (left) an assistant hospital administrator and course coordinator.

WC-SAAC seeks equitable mental health care funding

Despite promises for new mental health services and facilities, Wayne County residents outside the City of Detroit may not be able to find available services any closer than 30 miles away from where they live.

That's a point that the Wayne County Sub Area Advisory Council (WC-SAAC) of the Comprehensive Health Planning Council of Southeastern Michigan (CHPC-SEM) has called attention to by passing a resolution calling for a more equitable distribution of federal mental health funds in the county.

Dr. Perry Stearns, chairperson of WC-SAAC, said the resolution calls on the Detroit-Wayne County Community Mental Health Board to support a plan for community mental health in out-Wayne County.

The mental health board, responsible for allocating funds to develop needed services for the mentally, recently approved a plan for community mental health services downriver and in Western Wayne County. However, the problem now is providing money to begin implementation of the plan.

An even bigger problem, according to Dorothy Rush, vice-chairperson of WC-SAAC, is that almost the complete lack of aftercare service programs for patients released from mental hospitals to their homes in the community.

The old Wayne County Psychiatric Hospital, used to provide ambulatory mental health care for Western Wayne County, but the hospital closed and the State Psychiatric Hospital cannot provide aftercare services, according to state law.

With the exception of the Six Area Coalition Community Mental Health Center and the small, newly funded Downriver Mental Health Association Aftercare Program, no aftercare or outpatient mental health services are available to hundreds of thousands of people in Western Wayne County.

The SAAC resolution calls for the Detroit-Wayne County Community Mental Health Board to support a plan for community mental health in all of the out-Wayne County area. Funds must be allocated for mental health services for children, senior citizens, outpatient and aftercare programs.

WC-SAAC hopes that its resolution will signal further support for comprehensive mental health services throughout Wayne County.

Soap box racers will vie for $750 in prizes Sunday

The cars may not go screeching by, but to the hundreds of youngsters racing in the Soap Box Derby, their cars have taken just as much thought and hard work to put together as any Indy 500 car.

This Sunday marks the 41st annual Detroit Autorama Soap Box Derby and more than 100 youngsters will be competing for more than $750 in total prize money.

When Chevrolet discontinued their national sponsorship six years ago, the Detroit Autorama, in conjunction with Promotions Inc. and the Michigan Hot Rod Association, assumed the responsibility for the event. They felt the race was an established tradition of this area and Detroit youth should have the opportunity to participate in it.

The Soap Box Derby is a well established youth-vocational program which has been run nationally for more than 37 years. It is an amateur racing event for boys and girls ages 10 through 15; an annual event in which entrants must build their own gravity propelled cars. Through the years, the Soap Box Derby has become an American institution.

The Derby Program establishes a definite goal — the building of a gravity propelled racer. It establishes values that adults hold in high esteem — craftsmanship, perseverance, self-confidence and good sportsmanship — and it promotes the basic cornerstone of the most successful economic system in the world — free enterprise.

The Soap Box Derby enables a boy or girl to channel productive abilities within a broad parameter of guidelines utilizing his or her own tools. The entrant creates, designs, builds and races a product of his or her own conception.

This Sunday trophies and cash prizes will be awarded to the top eight winners in each of two divisions (Senior — ages 12 to 15 and Junior — ages 10 to 12). The first-place winner will receive a $200 savings bond plus an all-expense paid trip to Akron, Ohio, to compete in the All-American Race. All entrants will receive participation plaques, model car kits and special Derby helmets and T-shirts.

Whether you're racing or not — come out to Detroit Derby Downs on Sunday and give the racers the support they deserve.

Discover insects

A special children's program, entitled "Discovering Insects", will be conducted at Kensington Metropark near Milford on July 25 at 9 a.m.

Boys and girls ages 9-11 interested in learning about insects are welcome to join naturalist Dave Moilanen for this 2½-hour program. Various activities will be used to acquaint youngsters with insect diversity, insect life and insect collection techniques.

Participants should meet at the Spring Hill Picnic Area.

Advance registration is required as are vehicle entry permits.

Get off your rocker. Don't take old age sitting down.

THIS IS AN OPEN MEETING

RESOLUTION 78-354

WHEREAS: Act No. 198 of the Public Acts of 1974 is designed to provide a stimulus in the form of significant tax incentives to industry to renovate and/or expand aging plants and to build new plants in Michigan; and

WHEREAS: Under the provisions of the Act, a local governmental unit in which the total property tax levy is at least thirty (30) mills may establish property tax incentives to attract new plants in the area; and

WHEREAS: Said Act provides that a firm may apply for and be issued an industrial Facilities Exemption Certificate which entitles the Facility to exemption from ad valorem real and personal property taxes for a period of twelve (12) years. In lieu of the property tax, the firm will pay a specific tax known as the Industrial Facility Tax. The Industrial Facility Tax for a new plant in an industrial development district is determined by the ad valorem property tax levied by the municipality instead, however of using the total mills levied, only half the millage rate is applied; and

WHEREAS: Said Act provides that seventy-five (75 percent) percent of the owners of property to be affected by any proposed industrial development district may apply to the local governmental unit for the establishment of an industrial development district; and

WHEREAS: Federal-Mogul did on July 5, 1978 submit a request to the City of Romulus to establish an industrial development district, its description as follows:

WHEREAS: The City Council of the City of Romulus is cognizant of the critical employment situation existing within its corporate limits compounded by an equally critical employment situation in the State and indeed the country; and

WHEREAS: The establishment of the requested industrial development district would go far to encourage the Federal-Mogul Corporation to continue with additional projects on this site resulting in additional jobs for the citizens of the City of Romulus, as well as, a substantial increase to the City's tax base.

Along with 'easy living'

Summer has own hazards for heart

Just when it seemed we'd never make it through a Michigan winter, which even more than usual tested our endurance, patience and sense of humor, summer is upon us.

Overnight, we've done an about-face in lifestyles. Gone are the overcoats, shovels and snow tires. Out come the bathing suits, lawn chairs and other paraphernalia indicative of easier living.

"As we all plunge into this 'easier living,' however," said Dr. Richard Antell, Flint internist and president of the Michigan Heart Association, "there are several things we should keep in mind.

"While most people know that winter weather and activities can be hazardous to the heart, many are not aware that summer brings its own special hazards.

"Severe heat waves, for instance, have been known to increase the death rate from heart attack by more than 50 percent," Dr. Antell said.

Why?

"For one thing, we suddenly have different types of physical activity — lawn and garden work, biking, hauling a boat in and out of the water, swimming.

"This may amount to more exercise than many people got all winter long. Along comes a hot spell, and the body's natural cooling system has to shift into high gear, putting an added strain on the heart."

This cooling system is very efficient but causes the heart to work harder to pump more blood to the skin.

"Often, too, people may eat improperly in the summer. They may eat on a grab-and-run basis, diet to look good in their bathing suits, or skip meals altogether. As a result," Dr. Antell said, "they may not get enough potassium and sodium salts, which are necessary for proper brain function and regular heart-beat."

"Further going in and out of air conditioned cars and buildings repeatedly can put a tremendous load on the body's temperature control system."

According to Michigan Heart Association, you can minimize hot weather hazards by:

—Limiting physical exertion during hot spells;

—Staying (as much as possible) in one environment — either hot and humid or air conditioned;

—Eating foods rich in potassium and sodium salts.

Some people with high blood pressure or renal failure may be on low sodium or potassium diets and should check with their doctor before making any dietary changes.

Some good sources of potassium are bananas, cantaloupe, grapefruit, orange and tomato juice, potatoes, flounder and halibut as well as beets, broccoli, buttermilk, carrots, skim milk, watermelon, lean beef, chicken and lima beans.

A free pamphlet, "Facts About Potassium," is available from Michigan Heart; the pamphlet also explains which foods contain a large amount of sodium, which may have to be restricted by some heart patients.

Barten heads PCHA planning-service unit

Versatility is its name

Versatility is the name of this recipe. Garnished with fresh sliced strawberries and Birds Eye Cool Whip non-dairy whipped topping, it's a cool and lovely summer dessert. Served on a bed of crisp lettuce with mayonnaise

Frozen Fruit Medley — for salad or dessert

Every once in a while a recipe appears that sparks spirited discussion. Should it be classified as a salad or as a dessert?

Frozen Fruit Medley is one such recipe and whether you opt for salad or for dessert as pictured here, the end result is utterly delicious. Birds Eye Cool Whip non-dairy whipped topping blends beautifully with strawberry flavor gelatin, mayonnaise and fresh and canned fruit. Garnished with fresh, sliced strawberries and additional whipped topping, here is a light, refreshing dessert for a warm summer evening.

Conversely, it is just as refreshing served as a salad for lunch. Surrounded by crisp green lettuce and accompanied by additional mayonnaise or sour cream, it just hits the spot.

In addition to its versatility, this recipe is a boon to extra-busy homemakers who operate on very tight summer schedules. It can be made the night before, popped into the freezer and ready to slice and enjoy the next day.

Frozen Fruit Medley

1 can (8 oz.) chunk pineapple in juice
1 package (3 oz.) strawberry flavor gelatin
Dash of Salt

1 cup boiling water
¼ cup lemon juice
1 container (4-½ oz.) frozen whipped topping, thawed
one-third cup mayonnaise
1 medium banana, diced
½ cup seeded halved red or green grapes
¼ cup diced maraschino cherries
¼ cup chopped nuts

Drain pineapple, reserving juice. Add water to juice to make ½ cup. Dissolve gelatin and salt in boiling water. Add measured liquid and lemon juice. Chill until thickened. Blend whipped topping with mayonnaise, fruits and nuts; fold into gelatin. Pour into an 8x4-or-9x5-inch loaf pan. Freeze until firm, about 4 hours or overnight. Unmold, cut in slices and serve as dessert or salad. Garnish with additional fruit and whipped topping, if desired. Makes 5 cups or 8 to 10 servings.

Note: Halved fresh strawberries, drained diced orange sections or drained canned fruit cocktail may be substituted for part or all of the fruit.

Family outing marks Gustat's 50th anniversary

In observance of their golden wedding anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Gustat of Belleville enjoyed dinner with members of their immediate family at The Roman Forum in Canton.

Joining them for the special occasion were their two daughters, Carolyn and her husband, Fred Bonanni of Belleville; and Marjorie and her husband, Henry Wojcik of Milford. Their six granddaughters, Sharon, Diane and Linda Bonanni and Karen, Janice and Lisa Wojcik, completed the gathering.

The marriage of Ernest Gustat and Clara Briloski took place July 3, 1928 at St. Albertus Catholic Church in Detroit. Four years later the couple moved to 20405 Wilnot Rd., Belleville, where they have resided ever since.

On his retirement some 13 years ago, Mr. Gustat fulfilled a life-long dream by traveling with his wife to Alaska where they spent three months. Avid fishermen and hunters, the couple still travel to the Upper Peninsula periodically to pursue both sports.

With their travel trailer, the couple have been to a number of states throughout the country and spend the winter months in Florida. Members of the Airstream Trailer Club, they also have attended several trailer rallies.

The Gustats also are affiliated with the Belleville Area Senior Citizens Club and The Van Buren Senior Citizens and both are members of St. Anthony's Catholic Church.

Tips for cook-outs

Let's eat out! Outdoors, that is. Food cooked over a simple fire at the campsite or in an elaborate outdoor kitchen on wheels tastes great, but beware the drying of an open fire. Use plenty of melted butter brushed on all meats to keep them moist and add flavor.

Cold, fresh, wholesome, delicious, refreshing, satisfying... one beverage calls for all those words and more. Milk is the answer when you're thirsty. It's a natural!

There is literally nothing as satisfying as a tall glass of milk on a hot day. Unlike other beverages, milk's goodness stays with you to refresh without leaving that sticky feeling — adds real nourishment, too.

Garden tips

1. We planted broccoli in late May, but we still don't have any heads on it. The leaves look great. What's wrong? Broccoli is a cool season vegetable. It does not produce well during hot weather. For that reason it should be planted in very early spring or sowed in July for a fall harvest. Another point to consider is that not all varieties of broccoli form large heads. Varieties of sprouting broccoli produce small bunches rather than one large head.

2. What vegetables can still be sowed during July? There are several. Consider sowing bush beans, peas, lettuce, onions, carrots, kohlrabi, cabbage, cauliflower, broccoli, turnips, kale and spinach.

3. Our compost pile smells awful during rainy weather. Can this be prevented?

Compost that has an odor needs aeration. Turn the pile to alleviate compaction. Mixing coarse material with wet material that's likely to compact will help provide air spaces. An example is to mix hedge trimmings with grass clippings. A quick way to suppress odors is to put an inch or two of soil over the entire pile.

4. Now that asparagus season is over, what should I do to assure a good crop next year? Fertilize the planting with three cups of 12-12-12 for every 50-feet of row. Allow the ferns to grow naturally during the remainder of the growing season. Fertilize again next spring before new growth begins.

5. Carpenter ants are working in our shade tree. How can we stop them?

Remove dead branches from the tree. If they are tunneling into the trunk, of course, you cannot easily cut out the dead wood. You can, however, spray the decaying wood where the ants are working with Diazinon.

Newlywed Frydrychs living in Grand Blanc

A honeymoon trip through the western and central areas of Florida followed the May 27 wedding which united Candace L. Clark of Beulah and David N. Frydrych of Belleville in holy matrimony. On their return the newlyweds took up residence at 1420 Perry Rd., Grand Blanc. Baskets of daisies and greenery adorned the altar of St. Philip's

MR. AND MRS. DAVID N. FRYDRYCH

Episcopal Church in Beulah as The Rev. Ian Schotterbech heard the young couple exchange nuptial vows.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Clark of 528 Shields Dr., Beulah, the bride chose for her evening ceremony a princess-style gown of Venetian lace over satin with an insert of accordion pleating at the front of the toe-touching skirt. Long, fitted sleeves and an Elizabethan neckline were other styling details on the wedding dress. A tiara headdress secured her floor-length veil of silk illusion which was banded in matching lace and a bouquet of yellow roses, white daisies, baby's breath and English ivy completed her bridal finery.

As her sister's maid of honor, Rebecca Clark of Appleton, Wisc. carried a bouquet similar in makeup to the bride's. White wicker baskets filled with yellow daisies complimented the outfits of the three bridesmaids: Pam Cook, cousin of the bride; Clare Kinney and Debbie Bair.

The bridegroom, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Norbert Frydrych of 10697 Buchanan St. Belleville, asked his friend, Dennis Lochrie of Ann Arbor, to serve as best man. Others on the esquire side were Steve Fox and Larry Frydrych, Jon Clark and Cam Clark, all brothers of the bridal pair. The Crystal Mountain Lodge in Thompsonville was the setting for the wedding reception which followed.

The new Mrs. Frydrych holds a bachelor of arts degree from Western Michigan University where she graduated in 1976. She is currently employed as a social worker for Big Sisters of Flint and Genesee County.

Her husband earned his bachelor of business administration degree from WMU in 1977 and is now working as an accountant for Genova, Inc. of Davison, Mich.

potpourri

BY LEE SMITH
Suburban Living Editor

We've a rabbit — a wee brown bunny — who thinks he's a member of our family and who seems to be claiming squatter's rights in our garden. He's a brave little soul, likes to scamper about on the fringe which divides the lawn from the garden and puts on his show each evening as we eat dinner on the deck.

We've dubbed him "Peter Rabbitini" since he definitely prefers Bert's Romano beans to anything else in the garden. Carrots? Nope! Lettuce? Uh-uh!

We can't quite believe he's the loner he makes himself out to be though and we wonder if perhaps he's doing the scavenging for Flopsy, Mopsy and Cottontail who lack their brother's bravado in visiting Mr. Mc Gregor's garden. He's a cutie!

TIDBITS GARNERED FROM HOLLYWOOD SQUARES: A sneeze can travel up to 200 miles an hour (depending on who's doing the jet propulsing) and, if suppressed, can break one's jawbone.

Anytime there's a new can of coffee to be opened (and it's not too often these inflationary days) I get as close to the can opener as possible so as to inhale that marvelous aroma that comes whooshing out. And I think, "What a good smell!"

Not only coffee (being ground in the store and perking as well) but all the other good things in life that add to our scent-sory pleasures come to mind.

How 'bout chocolate cake baking... or the steaks the neighbors are grilling for dinner (when you're doctoring up leftovers)?

How 'bout the sweet, clean smell of baby powder or bed linens fresh off the line? (I never gave up those clotheslines just for that reason and, come a fairly breezy day, you're apt to see sheets fluttering in our back yard).

Lemon being squeezed or grated — what a tantalizing essence! Or tangerines being peeled (do they make you think "Christmas", too?)

How does smoke from a wood fire, autumn leaves burning or "spring in the air" grab you?

Oh-h, and what about freshly-baked bread? ... or a spice cake cooling on the racks? (Oh mercy — all this on an EMPTY stomach!)

Over their morning coffee last week, they told me, two New Boston neighbors decided to jot down their own favorite dishes at various restaurants they've visited and then decided to call me then and there rather than wait to write and perhaps forget.

They said, "Just say that Barb and Cheryl sure like the cannolis at Amato's in Detroit and the homemade pies at Debbie's in Allen Park; the biscuits at Bob Evans and the froglegs at nearby Orchard Grove." Okay, I said it and now may I add, thank you very much!

Two more books, returned to the library in recent days, warrant a couple comments since I really enjoyed "The Scotfield Diagnosis" by Henry Denker and thought "Horizon" by one of my favorites, Helen Mac Innes, lacked her usual depth and suspense.

Denker, who penned the Kingmaker (which I brought home to read), The Physicians The Starmaker, etc., uses a brilliant female neurologist as the central figure in his 378-page book. Easy and interesting reading about the doctor's suspicions of child abuse involving a young couple, on the rise socially, who live their lives according to the dictates of his wealthy and influential boss.

Having devoured and relished everything Mac Innes has ever turned out — she gave us The Venetian Affair, Double Image, Salzburg Connection and a host of other foreign intrigue novels — I found Horizon somewhat disappointing. I think that every so often a writer sorta "fills in" with a quickie and Horizon seems to be of that ilk — not much substance. If you're a Mc I. buff, you might skip this one.

How about these for names that roll off your tongue in a melodious, mellifluous manner: Aurelio Rodriguez... Lola Falana... Amos Otis... Harlan Huckleby... Cab Calloway. Or let's consider a few localites — Carrietta Pierman (always loved her name)... Evelyn Larabell... Stella Capili... Tony Turrentine... Carlos Florida... Lisa Pellecchia. Easy on the ear!

PIPE DREAM: If I were able to own one piece of original art work, it would be ANYTHING by Andrew Wyeth. That's why, on that last visit to the Belleville Library; I was so delighted to discover "Wyeth at Kuerner's" — a volume of reproductions of his work done at the Kuerner farm in Pennsylvania, only one of the two locations at which he paints; the other being the Olson farm in Maine.

In the publication (it's a biggie, weighing five POUNDS, contained 324 pages and retailing for an impressive 60 dollars) it is part of a special Circuit Book Collection shared by more than 50 member public libraries of the Wayne Oakland Federated Library System. Circuit Books are rotated every three months so they can be used by WOFLS branches which cannot afford to purchase them.

The volume reveals an intimate view of Wyeth at work (he NEVER allows anyone to observe him) and includes scores of quick pre-studies in pencil, dry brush and watercolor put together by the artist's wife, Betsy.

A MUST for art lovers! So don't let that book get away without seeing how this fantastic artist studies his subject and then sketches again and again before resigning it to a final brush. It's unbelievable!

THE BOTTOM LINE: If you want your children to turn out well, spend twice as much time with them and half as much money.

Mothers Club holds installation

New officers for 1978-79 were installed by St. Anthony's Mothers Club at the June meeting held in the school hall. The Rev. Raymond Skoney presided at the ceremony.

Heading the group for the ensuing year will be Marlene Daley, president; Pam Hughes, vice-president; Carol Kasperek, secretary, and Sharon Collins, treasurer.

A potluck dinner and social evening completed the festivities.

Cook-outs take time; serve snax

Outdoor cooking takes a bit longer than kitchen style, so be sure there are snacks and nibbles for the hungry folk awaiting your culinary efforts. Cubes of cheese and chunks of raw vegetables are ideal finger foods. A wide choice of cheese will make even the hungriest guests happy.

She reminded you of little and brave David taking on the champ of the Philistine, Goliath.

But, Mrs. Lena Eschtruth didn't have a sling or stones for a weapon when she was faced with certain death in troubled Zaire in the heart of Africa when Congolese rebels trained by Cubans attacked a small village where she and her husband, Dr. Glen J. R. Eschtruth, as missionaries of the United Methodist Church had operated a hospital for nearly 17 years.

With a strong beliefs in God, Mrs. Eschtruth survived the attack and the ordeals, but she lost her husband who was killed by the retreating rebel forces.

Mrs. Eschtruth was in Wayne recently to tell of her ordeal and to spread the gospel. She was the speaker at the First United Methodist Church and her sermon was spoken to a well-attended congregation which was depleted some because of the holidays.

"We are on the firing line every day of our lives for Christ," Mrs. Eschtruth said. "And we need your help and your prayers. The church isn't going to back down not in Zaire or anywhere. Everywhere we are faced with Satan's deeds and out of the ashes of Zaire we are building a stronger church."

Mrs. Eschtruth related how the enemy had bombed and strafed her village for nearly an hour and when it was over she prepared to hear the bad news. But the villagers had told her, "No one has been killed. The bombs hit the church and a nearby cemetery, but no one was killed."

Unfortunately, a nearby village was not so fortunate. Reports came back that seven persons were slain by the strafings.

In March of 1977, the invading rebels placed the Eschtruths and their three daughters under house arrest and later when they retreated into the thick forests, they took Dr. Eschtruth when they were killed by them and buried. His grave was discovered by nurses whom he had trained at the hospital.

Mrs. Eschtruth said the events leading up to her husband's death and the ordeal she and her family and their friends went through will never "be erased from her mind." But, after her sermon, she vowed that she would return to the land where her husband is buried, "and carry on my husband's and God's work."

"I've decided to complete my nurse's training and I will be going back shortly afterwards," Mrs. Eschtruth said. "There is too much undone, too much to finish up for me to remain behind."

The bespectacled, little over five foot, 100-pound gracious lady didn't appear to pose any threat to anyone, especially an invading Congolese army, however, that little shepherd boy David also slew a giant - with a sling and a stone and a mighty belief in God.

'Off the Record' moves to Friday

"Off The Record," Michigan public television's weekly report on legislative news from Lansing, is moving to 9:30 p.m. Fridays as Channel 56 presents an entire evening of public affairs programming.

Hosted by state capitol correspondent Tim Skubick, "Off The Record" is the only regular television program in Michigan to focus exclusively on the week's legislative events and the wheeling and dealing behind them. Topics for the program are chosen from those issues which have attracted the most attention during the week.

Filling out the rest of the Friday night lineup will be several other popular news and public affairs programs, some at new times.

Starting at 8 p.m. is "Washington Week in Review," a program dealing with the issues confronting the national government. Immediately following, at 8:30 p.m., is "Wall Street Week." Hosted by Louis Rukeyser, "WSW" puts the stock market and business news of the week into layman's terms for all to understand.

At 9:00 p.m. Ben Wattenberg defends the United States from its detractors on "In Search of Real America." "Off The Record" follows at 9:30 p.m. and at 10 p.m. it's "Firing Line" hosted by the conscientious contributor to conservative causes, William F. Buckley Jr.

A Westland resident, Russell J. Tuttle, has been named president of the Southeast Michigan Hospital Public Relations Association (SEMHPRA).

SEMHPRA is part of the Greater Detroit Area Hospital Council and covers the seven-county area in southeastern Michigan.

In addition to the presidency of SEMHPRA, Tuttle also was named chairman of the Southeastern Michigan Section of the Michigan Hospital Public Relations Association.

A long-time resident of the area, Tuttle has been active in civic and political affairs for many years. He is a former Westland City councilman, chairman of the Zoning Board of Appeals, chairman of the Westland City Committee, which campaigned to create Westland from the previous Nankin Township, member of the Township Personnel Board and member of the Board of Election Canvassers.

Tuttle, 45, a graduate of the University of Michigan, is currently the director of Community Relations for the Peoples Community Hospital Authority (PCHA).

Prior to joining PCHA, he was an executive assistant to a state senator in Lansing. Previous experience includes 12 years as supervisor of the editorial department for the Bendix Corp. and one year as an equipment engineer with the AT&T in Chicago. He has been with PCHA for six years.

Tuttle currently is on the Board of Directors of Family and Neighborhood Services and the Western Wayne County Mental Health Association.

Married, he and his wife Donna live in the Tonquish Subdivision of north Westland. They have one married son, also living in Westland.

He assumed his new positions on June 23.

Inspector who?

Who is "The Real Inspector Hound"? British playwright Tom Stoppard provides the answer in the farce of the same name, as spoof of an Agatha Christie thriller. "The Real Inspector Hound" opens Aug. 2 in the Studio, downstairs at the Hilberry Theatre and plays through Aug. 12. Part of a double-bill, it runs in tandem with "Red Peppers" by Noel Coward. Performances are Wednesdays through Fridays at 8:30 p.m. and Saturdays at 5 and 9 p.m. Appearing in the production are Douglas McBride (standing), David D. Montee and George Christopher Kappaz (sitting). Contact the Hilberry Theatre at 577-2972 for ticket information and reservations.

British theatre to provide 3 plays for summer festival

The British will invade the Hilberry Theatre on Aug. 2 when plays by three of England's top comedy writers join the summer theatre festival.

Alan Ayckbourn's marital farce "How the Other Half Loves" opens upstairs at the Hilberry at 8:30 p.m. At the same time two one-acts, "The Real Inspector Hound" by Tom Stoppard and "Red Peppers" by Noel Coward, play in tandem downstairs, at the Hilberry Studio.

"How the Other Half Loves" plays for two weeks, Wednesday through Saturday at 8:30 p.m. through Aug. 12. "The Real Inspector Hound" and "Red Peppers" play Wednesdays through Fridays at 8:30 p.m. with curtain times Saturday at 5 and 9 p.m., also through Aug. 12.

Ayckbourn, who has been called "the Neil Simon of England" and "the most successful comic dramatist Britain has produced since Noel Coward," also wrote "The Norman Conquests," a trilogy of comedies recently presented on Channel 56. Noel Coward, whose wit enlivened the English stage for half a century until his death in 1973, was considered by many leading dramatists of his generation. And Tom Stoppard catapulted to the forefront of contemporary English playwrights with his full length works, "Rosencrantz and Guildenstern are Dead" and "Jumpers." His award-winning teleplay, "Professional Foul," recently aired on American television. "How the Other Half Loves" will be presented at the Hilberry in an Americanized version which premiered on Broadway on March 29, 1971. John Schbeck praised it as "a true masterpiece of comedy...dazzling, wonderful, fun," and Frank Gannon called it "a very funny play" that would "stand the marketplace on its ear."

Coward's "Red Peppers," a parody of a small time music hall turn, was originally part of "Tonight at 8:30," a famous one-act play series featuring Coward and Gertrude Lawrence.

"The Real Inspector Hound," a spoof of an Agatha Christie thriller, "is an easy first class entertainment."

This double bill is directed by N. Joseph Calarco, set design for "Red Peppers" by Greg Karaba and for "The Real Inspector Hound" by Garry Chopican, lighting for both shows by Marc C. Riske and costumes by Ric Rice.

For ticket reservations and complete information about the summer season, phone the WSU Theatre Box Office (Cass and Hancock) at 577-2972.

And Tuesday through July 28 the Paw Paw Puppet Theatre will present five performances in the Studio Theatre.

Philip J. Micheal, owner and director of the show, will bring his puppets to life at 10:30 a.m. July 25, 27 and 28 and at 1 p.m. July 26 and 27.

Puppet pals

The Paw Paw puppet Theatre joins the Wayne State University Eighth Summer Theatre Festival for five performances only in the Studio Theatre downstairs at the Hilberry Theatre at 10:30 a.m. July 25, 27 and 28 and at 1 p.m. July 26 and 27. Philip J. Micheal, owner and director of the Paw Paw Puppet Theatre will be joined by his partner Elizabeth R. T. Hallo for the performances. Group rates are available by calling 577-3010 and individual ticket reservations can be made by calling 577-2972.

EMU Players stage Williams' 'Streetcar'

Tennessee Williams' award winning play, "A Streetcar Named Desire", will be the next offering of the Eastern Michigan University Players, when it opens July 28. It will continue through July 30.

The play, which won a Pulitzer Prize, the Donaldson Award and the New York Drama Critics Award, is the haunting story of a beautiful girl who is betrayed by love and tormented by the memory of her tragic marriage and the scandal she has precipitated in the small southern town of her birth. She eventually flees the town to seek refuge in New Orleans.

Written by poet and dramatist Tennessee Williams, the play has won widespread acclaim and has gained one of the widest audiences in contemporary literature. Williams struggled for years for critical recognition and won acclaim with his outstanding play "The Glass Menagerie." He is considered by many to be one of the outstanding playwrights in the world.

The EMU Players' summer production will be directed by P. George Bird, a professor in the department of speech and dramatic arts at Eastern.

Tickets for the 8 p.m. performances in Quirk Auditorium are $2 for EMU students with identification, and $3 for general admission. The EMU Box Office is open weekdays from 12:30 to 4:30 p.m. For reservations or for further information, call the EMU Box Office at 487-1221.

'Mecca' beckons 100 area golfers

Situated in Canton Township, bordering Wayne is a piece of land that has become the mecca of area golfers who have traditionally returned to it to pay homage.

The land, known as the Fellows Creek Golf Course, beckons more than 100 golfers again to the traditional site of the City Championship Golf Tournaments.

And the enclosure is again waiting the challengers who will defy the enclosure for two days beginning at 9:30 a.m. on Saturday.

When the 100 and some golfers complete the 36-hole, two day competition, there will be crowns placed on the heads of the best amateur male golfers in Westland, Wayne, Inkster, Canton Township and Garden City.

A new tournament champ is also assured as Tom Piscopink, the defending champ, has bypassed the Associated Newspapers-Parks and Recreations annual tournament to compete for the Michigan Public title.

Piscopink last year toured the 6,210 yard, par 72 course with a two day total of 138, an enviable six-under-par, to sweep the tournament, city of Wayne titles as well as capture the Lenny Anderson Memorial Trophy which is awarded the winner of the Wayne competition.

But there isn't a lack of talented golfers in this year's field.

Ken R. Eck of Westland, a perennial title hopeful, and George E. Tompkins, also of Westland, have been knocking at the title door for several years and this could be the year they find the key.

Wayne's Lynn M. Dodds, Bill Whitworth, and Ken McKee also could put their games together and surprise the hopefuls. But look for Canton's Dave Kosteva, who won the township title a few years ago, and Paul Deedler, the defending champ of that community to wage a duel for medalist honors.

Others whom one should keep their eyes on are Paul Oberhelman also of Canton, newcomers Jerry Garner and Kevin Ryan. And if Kevin Hammer, who will be playing for the Garden City title, can put the pieces together, the up-and-coming young golfer just could finish atop of the field in his first appearance.

"We're urging all golfers to show up on time," said Bill Hawley, tournament director. "This tournament has been one of the highlights of the summer season and as evidenced by the number of entries it is a very popular one.

"The second day tee off times will be available at the golf course Sunday morning and, as we have done in the past, we will let the leaders go off first so that we won't hold anyone up."

The tournament is designed to determine the separate city championships of all five communities: Westland, Wayne, Garden City, Inkster and Canton Township and the low five scorers from each city are eligible to play on the city team in the state Recreation Golf Tournament to be held next month.

There will be trophies presented to the top three finishers in each of the flights and additional flights will be organized only if total entry from a city warrants it. In case of a tie for a trophy, a "sudden death" playoff will be held to determine the winner.

There will be an additional trophy for the medalist (low scorer) of the entire field.

Rules will be provided at the golf course and any question pertaining to the tournament should be directed to Hawley and his staff.

Crissey's French Connection

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Sports Editor

Fred Crissey, the veteran baseball coach at Plymouth Canton, admittedly has had many arguments and toe-to-toe confrontations with ump's.

And, though Crissey and his natural protagonists haven't seen eye-to-eye on many controversial calls, the language, even though the words can't be found in Webster's, wasn't a barrier.

But, on his recent trip to Montreal, the winningest high school baseball coach in this area, admits "that maybe next time we'll take an interpreter or French translator along with us."

The occasion for the "international" controversy occurred when Crissey accepted an invitation to compete in the inaugural Montreal Invitational Baseball Tournament. He gathered together his 17 and under ball players and headed for the city that hosted the last Olympics.

Montreal has a dominant French-speaking population, so it's natural for them to officiate athletic competitions in that language. Crissey wished he had taken French in school when, on one play the first base ump called "time", but the pitcher fired the ball at a Canton batter and the ump behind the plate, shouted: "Strike"

That, of course, moved Crissey into action and asked for an explanation. The ump at first replied: 'Parlavous Francaise, (or something like that), 'Non, parlez Anglaise'.

When the language barrier cleared, the plate umpire's decision stood.

"But, really, it was fun," said Crissey. "I think our kids enjoyed it. And, I feel we impressed them to the point where they have invited us back again next year."

Next year, however, there will be changes in Crissey's lineup. Before departure last week to Montreal, Crissey said that he contacted the officials in Montreal and they informed him, "No bring 18 year olds," and he abided.

"However, when we got there I was told by my hosts "that, zee course, 18 year olds can zee play." And, of course it was too late to go back and round up such premier talent as shortstop Scotty Collins, who has led Canton for the past three years and was drafted by the Baltimore Orioles in the eighth round of the summer free agent draft. Also left behind because they were "too old" (18) were all-area catcher Jeff Campbell and pick-up player from Wayne, Jimmy Canfield.

Despite the obvious handicap of being younger than their counterparts in Montreal, the Canton team performed well.

"We lost all three of our games by 1-0 scores," said Crissey, "and, needless to say, if we had our 18 year olds, that situation could have been rectified."

Crissey said that the newspaper in Montreal awarded a Most Valuable Player medalion, fashioned after the Olympic gold, to a player after each game and two of the Canton players - James Dawson and Tom Etienne - were recipients of such awards.

"But I will tell you one thing. You can't beat French hospitality. They went out of their way to make sure these kids, were comfortable and had everything they needed.

"It was definitely a great experience for them and we're looking forward to going back," Crissey said.

Crissey described the "ultimate camp" for teen-age ball players which Quebec has organized.

The Quebec team was coached by three Montreal Expos employees who had "these kids playing together for over a year. The coaches have the pick of Quebec Province and what we really ran up against was their all-star team. It was like if we took an all-star team from Michigan," Crissey said.

In fact, Quebec's Rick Ledoux pitched a no-hitter against Canton and this was the first time in Crissey's lengthy career that any pitcher had managed to do that against any of his teams.

"I never had a no-hitter pitched against my kids in nearly 30 years," Crissey related, "and at the end I was really rooting for the kid. We didn't hit the ball very hard and believe me, you're going to hear the name Rick Ledoux again."

The challenge and the challengers

The 100 golfers who will compete in the 1978 Associated Newspapers-Parks and Recreation City Championship Golf Tournament will be greeted by a small hill perched on the first hole and if they fail to clear it, they can expect their ball to sink in a stream. The tournament will again return to the Fellows Creek Golf Course, 2936 Lotz Road. The Canton Township enclosure, which measures some 6,200 yards, has been the mecca for ANP golf practitioners who seek city titles for Wayne, Westland, Canton Township, Inkster and Garden City. The top five finishers of each of the cities also travel as a team to the state parks and recreation tournament.

Foley gets Romulus grid coach job

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Don Foley has been given the task of reorganizing the Romulus High football program.

The Romulus Board of Education last week approved a recommendation by athletic director Bill Hardy to elevate Foley, who has worked as an assistant coach, to the head coaching job.

The 29-year-old Foley, who prepped at Notre Dame High in Harper Woods, was Romulus' junior varsity head coach and worked as an assistant coach for Hardy and Tom Baldwin.

Baldwin resigned a year ago after the school district failed to approve a millage levy which would provide the necessary monies to maintain competitive varsity athletics. The millage subsequently was approved, allowing the school district to restore winter sports but not before some of the premier athletes had departed to school districts where programs were not jeopardized by millages.

"True, we're a year behind most of the schools," said Foley, who was a runningback for Notre Dame High School in Harper Woods, "and we're going to have to hustle to catch up."

"But many of this year's seniors played for our junior varsity team and these kids are hungry...they want to play ball."

Foley pointed out that he has not yet completed his coaching staff and is in the process of doing so. He also was to meet with future members of the football team, setting up a conditioning program which was to get underway yesterday.

Married to Marilyn, the Foleys have a 4-year-old daughter, Deana, and make their home in St. Clair Shores.

Romulus will begin the 1978 campaign on Sat., Sept. 9 against Dearborn St. Alphonsus and the Eagles also have scheduled such powers as Ann Arbor Huron, which some consider one of the toughest teams in the state, Detroit Pershing, Riverview and Annapolis.

"We have two openings remaining and have scheduled seven games thus far," Foley said, "and none of the teams that we have scheduled, with the exception of maybe one had a losing season a year ago."

Because Romulus isn't affiliated with a league, the Eagles won't be playing for a conference championship. However, Foley doesn't see that as any obstacle.

"I think most teams and coaches look to the state playoffs as their goal," Foley said. "Though we would like to play for a league title, the state playoffs is as good a goal as any to shoot for."

Cathy Boatright

Romulus has its own 'Bad News Bears' star

By ERIC GEARNS
(Special to the ANP)

It was a little like watching a rerun of the original "Bad News Bears", being led through practice by their star player—a girl—hitting like the boys, throwing like the boys and outturning most of them.

The only difference here was the girl was named Cathy Boatright and not Tatum O'Neil. Cathy is a very pretty and very feminine brunette and not a masculine-acting, gum-chomping blonde.

The major difference is, however, that Miss Boatright is a real athlete and not an actress playing a role.

At 15-years-old and while other girls are into figure skating and girls softball, Cathy has become the first female ever selected to a Senior Little League All-Star team in the state, and quite possibly the first one nationally.

Cathy has played every position on the team, including catcher. She will also represent the Romulus South Senior All-Stars in the upcoming state tournament as an outfielder.

Cathy's coach, Dan Moates feels that she is more than just a good female player but, as he puts it, "A damned good player period."

According to Coach Moates, "Cathy has the best attitude of anyone on the team. She is all business and, she is the most coachable youngster I have ever had the pleasure of coaching."

Cathy feels that it is the most normal thing in the world for her to be the only girl among hundreds of young male athletes. "I think if a girl wants to play baseball and she is good at it, then she should," said the petite teen.

Don't get the wrong idea though, Cathy is no "women's libber", trying to break longstanding prejudicial barriers. She simply prefers to play baseball.

"I first started out trying to play girls' softball," Cathy related, "but most of the girls couldn't catch or throw and there was no fun at all in that," so obviously she turned to the boys for the ultimate challenge.

Cathy says it really started when she was about six years old and her brothers allowed her to participate by being a "gopher" and chase errant balls. Cathy is chasing fair balls now in the outfield, and woe be to the boy who tries to take an extra base on her.

League president Jack Moores, the trainer at the University of Detroit, pointed out, "that Cathy has an arm like a cannon and throws the ball accurately as well."

Cathy is no slouch with a bat either. She batted .281 for the season and was well above that figure most of the year.

"Her greatest asset is her ability to make contact with the ball," pointed out Moores, "and she very rarely strikes out."

Unlike most boys her age, Cathy doesn't follow the big leagues very much, but she does like the Dodgers and especially Ron Cey, even to the point of emulating his straight up running style.

Cathy's parents are very supportive of her desires to play in a male dominated sport. Her mother, Mrs. Vina Boatright, says: "At first, four years ago I was very concerned about her safety and the fact that I figured she would probably just sit on the bench, but after I saw her play I wasn't concerned anymore."

Cathy's dad, Al Boatright, added, "Of course I am really proud of her, as I am of all of my children. Her brothers are always helping her at home to improve her game, it's a real family effort."

The other guys on the team also show a great deal of support for Cathy. To them, she's just "one of the guys."

On Saturday Cathy Boatright and the rest of the guys will travel to DeLuca Field in Melvindale at 5 p.m. where they will begin their quest for the state championship.

Should they be successful, young Ms. Boatright will lead her team to the nationals to be held in Gary, Indiana.

And who knows maybe they can even get a game with the "Bad News Bears."

Westland Major's leader is 13-0

Studio Lounge rolls on

Undefeated Studio Lounge spotted Krajenke Auto two runs in the first inning, then erupted for 10 in the fourth and buried their rivals 18-8 for their 13th victory in the Westland Men's Major Softball League.

Krajenke offered resistance for three innings as winning pitcher Ron Jones had his problems with John Rayburn and Steve Gordon, but after the 10-run outburst in the bottom of the fourth, the proverbial writing was on the wall.

Rayburn cracked a pair of singles and a double and drove in a run for the losers, while teammate Gordon laced three singles and Cliff Davidson chipped in two one-baggers.

However, Bob Adams was rough on loser Daryl Gunther who served the Studio Lounge slugger a pair of homers, a double and single. Adams' four hits paved the way for four RBIs. Gary Battles had two doubles and a single while Dennis Kusutich rapped out a roundtripper and a double for three runs batted in.

Meanwhile, Big Bill's Sporting Goods remained close on the leaders' heels, pounding the Rockets into submission 26-2 for its 12th victory in 13 starts. Winning pitcher Steve Patterson got ample hitting support from Bob Killingbeck who drilled an over-the-fence homer, picked up three doubles and two singles to account for four RBIs. Tim Abramski also had an excellent day at the plate as he stroked three singles and a homer and also bagged a homer for four RBIs, while slugger Vern Westerlund chipped in a double and three singles.

Bob Roberts, the losing pitcher, homered off of Patterson while Jim Hawkins and John Irwin split four of their team's seven hits.

Shope Around posted one of those rare shutouts as it victimized Metro Maintenance Supply 28-0 behind Larry Holt's eight-hitter. Charlie Meyers, the losing hurler, gave up four homers, all over the fence, to Bob Goodlow who also got a pair of doubles. Goodlow's teammate Guy Burke socked a pair over the fence for homers and carded two other hits and Bill Pierce latched on to a homer and a pair of triples. Goodlow's six hits counted for seven RBIs.

Jim Taylor, Rick and Bill Kenyon each had two hits for the losers.

In the only other Major Division game, Jack's Party Store broke loose for four runs in each of the first and second inning en route to a 12-5 victory over Castelli Realtors.

Joe Ceslesky led the hitting attack against loser Tom Traub as he hammered two over the fence and doubled for four RBIs. Jeff Kryzuada had three singles and Bob Fields had two hits for the winners.

Bob Phillips, the winning pitcher, was tagged for three hits by Dennis Watson while Jim Griffin and John Wojnar picked up two hits apiece.

Red Division duel ends with Joe Thomas triumph

When two undefeated teams clash, something has got to give, the saying goes.

And it was Century 21 that caved in as Joe Thomas continued to claim dominance in the Westland Minor Red Division Softball League.

Thomas scored nine runs in the first two innings against the previously undefeated Century 21 contingent and Joe Cooley silenced Century's battery with a six hitter.

The victory, Thomas' eighth in as many games, enabled them to take hold of first by themselves, while Century moved down a notch and is all alone in second.

Ray Fox homered and singled for the losers while Don Thomas and Steve Wilson each scored after getting aboard via singles.

However, Jim Tromeur, Terry Kaufman and Bob Tamaszewski were just too much for Century and losing hurler Bob Fullerton. Tromeur belted four hits, including a double and Kaufman laced a triple and three singles while Tamaszewski sliced two singles and homered.

Meanwhile, All-Star Sports struck for four runs in the first inning off of losing pitcher Ted Rize and went on to beat Who Cares 10-6 for their fifth win in eight starts. Tom Gerven scored four times after getting aboard on four singles, and Ken Bridges singled in two runs with three hits while Bob Petart belted two safeties and had two RBIs.

Winning pitcher Doug Morrison had his problems with John Vosloh who slammed two triples and Larry Kwitkowski had three hits and Al Clark added two singles.

In other Red Division games, eighth-place Jamie's rallied for six runs in the bottom of the fifth but it wasn't enough as Crabbie Joe's hung on to win a narrow 11-9 ball game. Crabbie's grabbed a 7-1 lead after three innings, and added two more in the top of the fifth before Jamie's six-run outburst.

Tim Reilly did most of the damage to losing pitcher Monte Gonzalez who delivered a pair of homers, a double and a single which led to five RBIs for the slugger. Tom Doupe had three singles and Greg Kelly chipped in a homer and single to the winner's cause.

Art Smith gave up 11 hits, including a single and double to Mickey Cawatzka and a couple of hits to Roger VanHorn and Monte Gonzalez.

Tom Macerrie's built up a 15-2 lead after three innings and coasted to a 19-4 victory over winless and last place Tri-Way Controls. Tri-Way got the hits (12) but apparently not at the right time as Dave Abey and Scott Kinder collected three and Brad Burger checked in with two against winning pitcher Tony Kiersche.

Loser Dennis Jackson gave up four hits, including a triple to Ron Topper who batted in three runs, while Dan Skelton bagged three singles and Erik Radcliffe socked a single and double.

12-run Silver Bullet rally doesn't stop Crestwood

The last place Silver Bullets apparently aren't reading the papers. How else can one explain the Bullets' performance against undefeated Crestwood Dodge which has strung together seven consecutive victories?

The Bullets, winners of only one of eight games, went on a scoring rampage in the fifth inning when they tallied 12 times to take a 14-12 lead over the unbeaten leaders and were on their way to what appeared to be the upset of the season when Crestwood drove back and scored five times in the bottom of that inning and sealed it with a two-run spurt in the sixth.

Winning pitcher Paul Campbell gave up a homer and single to Darryl Hanner and Chris Rowe who accounted for four and two RBIs, respectively, while Dick Cowley knocked in two runs with three singles.

Bill McKennar nearly hit for the cycle off of loser Paul Newson who was tagged for three hits and two RBIs by the Crestwood slugger. Randy Temple checked in with three hits, one a double, while Rick Rushlow also collected three hits—all singles for the winners.

Meanwhile, Johnnie's Union 76 (6-2) kept its slim hopes of catching Crestwood alive with a 15-7 pastings of McCurdy Optical which blew a 6-3 third inning lead. Johnny's rallied for seven big ones in the fifth to overcome the deficit. John Stivers, who homered, triple and singled off of loser Ed Spontack accounted for three RBIs. Rocky Feister also had three runs batted in thanks to a triple and a pair of singles, while Gary Sharp stroked a single, double and triple and chased in two runs. Winner Don Yanick gave up three hits to his mound counterpart, Spontack, and Jim Harrison drilled a homer and single to end the day with two RBIs, while Joe Reynolds had two hits.

The Family rallied for four runs in the top of the seventh to edge Berry's Home Supply 15-14. Berry's appeared to have enough runs on the board after five innings when it lead 9-4 but then the proverbial roof collapsed. Stan Mars, John Bullard and Ken Eck each had two hits for the winners which aided Danny Covert to pick up the decision, while

Burger King makes move in Adray

Bledsoe pitches his third straight shutout

Baseball manager George Yake and Burger King are beginning to make their move in the Adray League.

Sweeping both ends of a doubleheader from Garden City,

Yake's troops also humbled league-leader Griffin and Wendy's last week to close within three points of catching the perennial power, Griffin.

"Griffin has compiled 28 points and we have 25," Yake said, whose team has won eight of its last nine games and tied the other game. "So we're in the thick of this thing and I really have to say that Clyde Pittman, out first base coach who has got this team running, has made the difference."

Pat Bledsoe, former Wayne Memorial pitching ace, turned in his third shutout of the season as he subdued Wendy's 6-0. Bledsoe, a strong righthander, tossed a three hitter, struck out eight and walked one.

Burger King erupted for three runs in the fourth inning and that was more than enough for Bledsoe. Jimmy Ross laced two hits in three appearances at the plate and drove in two runs while John Mervyn also knocked in two runs with a perfect two for two.

Ross, also a righthander, jolted

Griffin 7-1 as he scattered eight hits, notched three whiffs and walked an equal number.

Burger King scored four runs in the seventh to rout loser Doug Smith from the mound. Smith gave up three hits to Randy Pittman and also two hits to Mark Lipinski.

Garden City fell 10-3 and 10-2 to the hit Burger King team. In the opener, Al Lux pitched four innings to charge up the victory, while Lipinski received credit for the save. Pittman again paced the hitting assault as he went two for three and stole three bases. Craig Walker drove in two runs with two hits as Burger King put five runs on the board in the sixth inning.

Joe Emery, who recently signed a national letter of intent to attend the University of Detroit, sustained the loss. He gave up eight hits.

Ross went the distance in the nightcap and threw a three-hitter while Walker, Lipinski and Tommy Deacon each chipped in with two hits.

Pittman also stole two bases in the evening game to bring his total to six for the day.

Wayne Post III keeps playoff hopes alive

Wayne Post III kept its hopes alive for a post season tournament playoff berth last week by fattening its American Legion record to 9-8 on the season.

Manager Norm Hoenes' ball club had won seven in a row until league-leading Allen Park shut them out 6-0 in the nightcap of a doubleheader.

"If Allen Park wins the Legion title it will represent the league at the Legion Tournament, while the next two teams will be entered in the Connie Mack playoffs," explained Hoenes.

The Connie Mack tournaments will be played at Marshall, Mich. and in Ann Arbor the first week of August.

Allen Park, presently sporting a 10-4 record, has a commanding lead over the second place Wayne and Taylor clubs who are tied for second at 9-8.

Jeff Kosta held Wayne to three hits, struck out and didn't allow a batter to reach base on balls to cut the Wayne winning streak at seven. Steve Campbell took the loss. He's 2-2 on the season.

Crissey compared Ledoux to another "Frenchman", Tommy Willette, a former Plymouth star who is playing college ball at North Carolina State and was drafted by the Kansas City Royals.

The trip by the Canton team was financed by the players and their parents and it was the first such trip of its kind by a local or area high school team.

Crissey obviously won't need to brush up his players for the international tournament next year. He has many of the ball players who won the Western Six, district and regional and reached the state semi-finals returning next year to the team.

However, he probably will be taking a course in French. A coach should know a few words such as !!?!+&&!!!; to make sure the umpers understand that you speak their language.

Right?

Wolverines, Colts share top billing in Class E

It took them eight innings, but the Colts proved to the Wolverines that they deserve a slice of first place in the Wayne Class E Baseball League.

The two arch-rivals met recently and at stake was first place and a 5-all deadlock was resolved when the Colts rallied for two decisive runs in the eighth to claim a 7-5 victory. That victory enabled the winners to climb into a two-way tie for first place with the Wolverines who are also 5-2 on the year.

Don Swanson drilled a bottom of the seventh homer to knot the game at 5-all, but in the top of the eighth Colts' Ed Jarosiewicz tripled home Greg Maxwell and later scored to break up the game.

Maxwell, who had a double and two singles, produced four runs batted in, while Mark Stanford had two hits. Winning pitcher Jarosiewicz fanned 13, walked six in twirling a six-hitter. Swanson, who worked the first three innings, accounted for three of the Wolverines' five runs thanks to a homer, double and a single.

Kevin Rodriguez got a pair of singles, while Doug Westfall and Wayne Alford drove in runs with their singles for the losers.

Earlier, the Colts rallied for two runs in the top of the seventh to turn back a pesky Bears' ball club 4-2. Troy Lindon notched 13 strikeouts, walked five and pitched a four-hitter in chalking up the victory. Mates Mike Buzzell had a double and single, while Jim Thomason laced a two-run double. Lindon helped his cause with a two-run single.

LeBlanc was charged with the loss. He also threw a four-hitter, struck out eight but walked 10. Barry Conyer, Mike Fontaine and Bill Collop each got singles.

Jarosiewicz fired a two-hitter as the Colts routed the Lions 6-1. The Colt hurler was in control all the way as he got 12 strikeouts, walked one and missed a shutout when the Lions put their only run on the board in the seventh. Perfect for six innings, Jarosiewicz gave up a seventh inning double to Jim Little and a single to Gary VanHoffman which stopped his bid for a coveted "perfect game."

Greg Maxwell tripled and Paul Syano latched on to a pair of singles for the Colts who got to Lions' pitchers Jerry Perusse for five hits and to VanHoffman for two.

The Lions came up with two runs with two-away in the seventh to jolt the Wolverines 6-5 as Jimmy Little and VanHoffman teamed up on a nine hitter. Little pitched the first five innings, was tagged for seven hits and five runs before giving way to VanHoffman, who got credit for the victory.

The Wolverines were forced to play nine innings before they were able to yank an 8-6 victory from the mitts of the Bears. The Wolverines scored three runs in the ninth to pull out the win as Jeff Thornton, in relief of Swanson, earned the decision. Thornton worked the final four innings and gave up only two hits.

Barry Conyer started for the losers and pitched eight innings, fanned 15, walked seven and tossed an eight hitter before LeBlanc took over. LeBlanc was charged with the loss.

Rodriguez, Tim Millar, Doug Westfall, and Don Swanson who had three RBIs, each had two hits for the winners.

Angels wrap up Babe Ruth season with perfect record

By GEORGE WHITEHEAD
(Special to ANP)

On a snappy double play very identifiable with the brand of baseball displayed all season, the Angels put to rest a perfect regular campaign to capture first place honors in the Class A Division of the Westland Babe Ruth Central East League.

The win, a 19-5 verdict over the Tigers, was the 14th consecutive for the Angels in as many starts.

The befitting twin-killing came after the first batter was retired. Angel pitcher Kurt (Korky) Whitehead hit Kingston Trotter to keep the Tigers alive. Ted Iltis followed with a sharp double, but Angel centerfielder Matt Cote fired the ball to shortstop Keith Howe whose relay throw cut down Trotter at the plate.

In turn, catcher Jeff Hanneberg rifled the ball to third and Chris Strome put the tag on Iltis for the game and regular season ending out.

"That's the way things have gone for us all season," said Manager George Whitehead. "These guys have played good team baseball all year and it is fitting that a concerted team effort should end it."

Brett Coulter, a 13-year-old making his first start, gained the pitching victory with a save going to the younger Whitehead. Coulter aided his own cause by driving in two runs, while Cote led the final-game hitting assault with two hits and three RBIs.

Howe, Gerard Painter and Whitehead also drove into runs.

The Angels were paced in their league-winning drive by the Howe twins—Keith and Khris—who led the team in pitching and hitting. Keith started and completed four games, striking out 50 batters. Khris gained hitting honors with a .638 average which included six doubles, three triples and two home runs. They each drove in 17 runs.

Khris Howe also chalked up one win and six saves throughout the year, while Strome and Hanneberg each were credited with four wins.

Cote, a 14-year-old sure-glove performer, finished the season with a hitting spree for a .475 average behind Khris Howe, while Hanneberg, the regular catcher, ended with a .463. Hanneberg and Cote each drove in 15 runs.

"Every player on this squad has contributed immensely at one time or other," commented Manager Whitehead. "There hasn't been one boy who has not done something to either keep us in a game, put us ahead, or stop a potential opponent rally."

Other members of the Angels including Coach Greg Chapman are Greg Gill, Gary (Chip) Walker, Daryl Smarsh, Frank Cote, Scott Pinkerton, Parmod Mukhi and Dale Hensley.

Whitehead was quick to point out that the averages of the Angel batters are even more meaningful because of the team's scorekeeping.

"Bob Hanneberg, (father of catcher Jeff) kept score for us all season and we told the guys early that only legitimate hits would count," Whitehead said. "Many times a lesser baseball man would have given a batter a hit on a booted ball, but I told the boys they had to hit them to get them—and they did."

Westland Warriors whip Jake's, 8-5

loser Jack Jurcism was backed by a 23-hit attack but it went to no avail. Steve Kaufman rapped a couple of doubles and a single and drove home two runs. Daryl Perkins turned in with three RBIs thanks to three hits and Steve Frazer also had three hits and two runs batted in.

M & R Collision and pitcher Bill Buckner won a slugfest 23-12 from B.J. Lounge and Conrad Poprawa. Jim Stephenson led the attack for the winners with a homer, double and two singles, driving in four runs. Teammates Don Todd and Sandy Botnff also checked in with four hits.

Vic Tomlin and Dennis Gorczyca each had two hits, including round-trippers for the losers and Mike Mackiewicz picked up two singles off of Buckner.

Meanwhile, over in the Blue Division, league-leading Westland Warriors hung on to beat second place Jake's Lounge 8-5 to hurdle one of its major title obstacles.

The Warriors tilted the scoreboard for three runs in the first inning, then scored one in the third and came back for two runs in the fifth and sixth frames. Jake's made it look close with a four run seventh inning surge.

Al Pulk, the losing hurler, gave up two hits to Don Dumouchelle, Paul Lapinski and Brian Parrish, while Jake's, who outit the league-leader 16-11, got three hits from Jim Kolodziej, and two each from Dennis Simods and Pulk.

P & P Distributors broke open a 9-all deadlock with a two-run rally in the eighth to edge Argo Paint, 11-9, in another Blue Division game.

Dave Eads laced a top of the eighth single to drive home two runs and gave the P & P Distributors their first win of the season. It also prevented Argo from reaching the winning column for the eighth time this season.

Eads had three other singles and teammates Roger Fish and Marty Klaus drilled three and two hits respectively off of loser Mike Armstrong. Winner Bob Sharp had his share of headaches as he yielded 18 hits, three each to Rich Bonk and Jim Sheetz who had triples, and John Salazar who had three singles.

Meanwhile Evergreen Sprinklers blew an 8-0 first inning lead and surrendered to The Wanteds, 14-10, in their final meeting against each other. The Unwantseds came back and got to loser Jeff Combs for two runs in the second, two more in the third and erupted for a decisive nine runs in the fourth as Rick Powell blasted a pair of triples, a double and single for the winners. Mates Steve Tolbert added a triple and a couple of singles and Terry Johnson picked up a double and single.

Winner Bob Thornton, touched for 16 hits, gave up a homer to Joe Budreau who also had two singles. Rollie Clendening and Tom Munn wound up with three and two hits, respectively.

The Answering Service, behind a 28-hit attack, humbled Roeder's Tropical and pitcher Gary Kowalski, 20-6, for their third win. Bud Brock, Mike Trussler and Brian Osborn each had four hits for the winners. Brock, the winning pitcher, counted three RBIs, and he also gave up a pair of doubles to Calvin Sailor, and run-scoring singles to Dale Helton and Bob Roach.

Long begins pro career

Johnny Long became the first recently drafted collegian to sign with the Detroit Pistons, the Pistons announced last week.

Long, who was the 29th player selected in the 1978 National Basketball Association draft, is now reunited with his former college coach Dick Vitale. Long signed a four-year standard uniform player contract with the Pistons.

No other details of the contract were announced.

The 6-5 former University of Detroit forward and all-state, all-area cager from Romulus is considered an excellent shooter who can put the ball on the floor or hit consistently from the outside. He is a strong, mobile player who can also run the break and rebound.

JOHNNY LONG

"We are very pleased to have John join the Pistons. He was a very good college player who brought excitement to Detroit. We hope he continues to excel and improve in the NBA," the Pistons front office reported.

Long played 110 games for the University of Detroit and had a 19.7 career scoring average as the Titans rolled to an 86-26 record from 1974 through 1978.

John improved each year at the U of D and capped off a senior season by hitting for a 21.4 scoring average while shooting more than 54 percent from the floor.

He led the Titans in scoring as a junior and senior, and broke former All-Pro Dave DeBusschere's career scoring record by totaling 2,167 points.

"John Long was one of the top 20 players in the country coming out of college and the Pistons were fortunate enough to be able to draft him on the second round," said Vitale. "He has matured so much and is a great person."

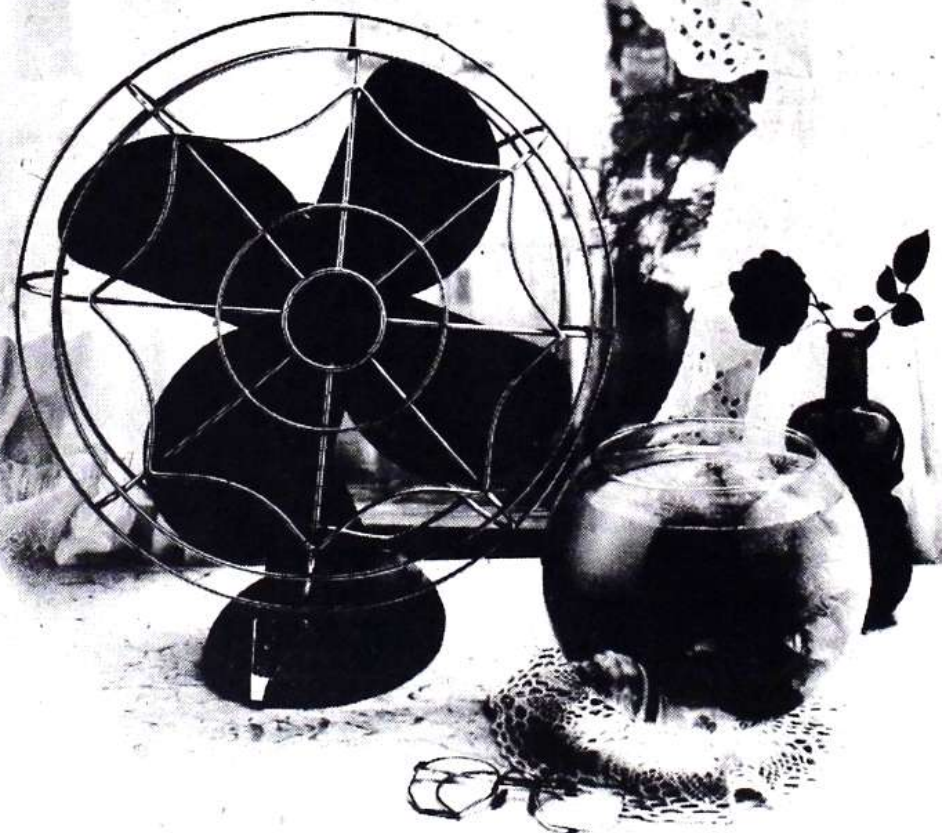

Long is the kind of player who broke games wide open in college. He not only can shoot and score, but also possesses tremendous desire which when coupled with his speed allows him to run, steal the ball and rebound bigger than his size.

1,500 see All-Stars

The hitters were way ahead of the pitchers in the inaugural Cub Scout Softball All-Star Game which lured more than 1,500 fans to Garden City Park last week.

The West Division outlasted the Eastern, 24-18, as Brad Martin, a 10-year-old from Pack 867, was voted the MVP for the West, and Tim Banyai from Pack 853 earned similar accolades for the East.

When everybody used fans, nobody cared about EER.

Years ago, when summers got hot enough to fry an egg on the sidewalk, you could switch on the fan and hope for a change in the weather. The last thing you cared about was energy efficiency rating, or EER.

Today, air conditioners keep people comfortable during the summer heat. And it's important to know that some units use less electricity than others to do the same job.

So, if you're buying a new portable air conditioner to cool one room, or central air conditioning to cool the whole house—look for a model with a high energy efficiency rating—or EER number. You'll save energy and money if you buy a model with an EER of 8 or more.

Air conditioners, like refrigerators and other major appliances, are big energy users. And the more efficient they are, the less they cost to operate.

So it's important to use all your major appliances properly and keep them in good operating condition.

Detroit Edison has helpful booklets on the wise use of electricity. Stop in at any Customer Office and pick up what you need.

Westland Dad's fumbles chance to beat Chippers

The Dad's Club missed a golden opportunity to move into the top berth in the Westland Community Organizational League as they dropped a 13-8 decision to the pacesetter JC Gold Chips.

The Chips have a narrow one-game (6-1) edge over their rivals who are now 5-2 on the season. The two other opponents - Court Jesters (2-5) and JC Blue Chip (1-6) are out of the running.

The Dad's Club erupted for a two-run lead in the first inning and built it up to 3-0 after three innings, but the league-leaders rallied for two in the fourth and struck for six runs in the fifth to take the lead for good.

Winning pitcher Mike Kehrer gave up 14 hits, including three hits to Norm Swope and Dave Gorshek who drove in two runs apiece on a pair of singles and a double. Losing pitcher Hank Blayer, tagged for 15 safeties, wasted two singles and had two RBIs.

Kehrer helped himself with three hits, and Bob Alves laced a couple of doubles and a single, while Steve Budke singled twice and had a double.

In the other game, the Jesters crushed their rivals 29-8 as Kim Herbert belted three homers, doubled and singled and drove in six runs. Mates Tim Abramski and Don Lanny also homered while Abramski had five RBIs, two going over the fence.

Chuck Pickering was the loser, as he was tagged for 27 hits. Tom Smith got credit for the victory, giving up a homer and double to Bob Bailey and Terry Griffin, while Mike Shender collected a single and double.

Tastee Freez turns back arch rival J&D Auto, 6-3

J & D Auto, coveting the No. 1 spot occupied by undefeated Tastee Freez, received its second shot at the Wayne Women's Softball League leader and fell short 6-3 last week.

The victory enabled Tastee to move two games up on the perennial challenger, however, the league-leader, who is 10-0, isn't out of danger. Breathing down their necks are Turner-Service-Jack Demmer Ford which moved into second place thanks to a 21-0 shellacking over Standard Federal.

Standard Federal's didn't stand a chance after the first inning when Turner's banged out six runs, added three more in the second while pitcher Pat Bledsoe scattered four hits.

Maureen McIntosh, who slapped a single and a homer, personally accounted for five RBIs, while mate Sarah Grider also latched on to a single and double which were good for three runs batted in.

Turner's sent 13 batters to the plate in the first inning against losing pitcher Nancy Blamore who had her problems getting the outs.

In the key game of the inning, J & D put two runs on the board in the first inning, but winning pitcher Renee Bernio buckled down and shut out her rivals the next four innings and gave up her final run in the sixth. Renee had ample hitting support from Beth Tracy and Brenda Schwartz who each had two run singles in a pivotal four-run, fourth inning surge. Kim Schwartz collected three hits, including a homer, while Brenda Schwartz turned in with three singles and Debbie Karnia had a pair of singles.

Cheryl Soltis led J & D's attack with three hits, including a run-scoring base hit. Gay Diehl bagged two singles.

Jake's Lounge picked up its fourth victory in nineties at the expense of Commercial Power Brakes, 12-5. Winnina pitcher Cindy Komrous held her opponents scoreless for three innings before giving up three runs in the fourth and two in the fifth. Loretta Bailey and Janet Corda split four of the loser's 10 hits, while Kathy Perusse drilled a homer off of loser Jane Cieply who also gave up three hits, including a pair of doubles to Kathy Chaffin, and a pair of singles to Karen Vicker.

Turner's turned back Unistrut 20-1 as winning pitcher Bledsoe missed a shutout in the sixth. A 15-run outburst by Turner's was more than enough to convince Unistrut it was no match for the second place team.

Debbie Moore had two of the four Unistrut hits, while Nancy Wojewski, Linda Jackson, and Virg Sexton each had two hits off of losing pitcher Linda Bye.

Skotzte, Dickinson tied for golf lead

After eight weeks of golfing, Lou Skotzte and Silvia Dickinson remain in a two-way tie for first place in the Canton Women's Golf League.

Both Ms. Skotzte and Dickinson have compiled 36 points and share the top billing in a field that includes more than 20 other golfers.

Dickinson shot a 55, while Skotzte posted a 63 to beat respective opponents and stayed in a deadlock for first.

The second eight-weeks of action will get underway this week. Here are the final standings for the first eight-weeks:

Lou Skotzte 36, Silvia Dickinson 36, Betty Williams 34, Bev Green 32, Mary Kay Frey 31, Helen McGee 30, Tiu Himmelberger 29, Estelle Heidt 28, Pauline Pryor 28, Ginnie Johnson 25, Marge Trapp 22, Denise Chapman 21, Betty Lowing 19, Kay

Nichols 19, Irene Karnish 18, Mary Jane Faussett 17, Karen Griffith 17, Nadja Alimpich 16, Sandy Steed 13, Dieder Vesnaugh 10, Josephine Coreschi 6, Sandy Froozan 5, Marge Mogelnicki 5, Olga Fitzpatrick 4.

Meanwhile, Judy Bond and Ralph Dietz tightened their grip on first place in the Canton Seniors Golf League thanks to a 39 point total after four weeks. Floyd Vickery and Bill Begg both took five points but that wasn't enough for the previous league-leaders to hang on to first place.

Vickery and Begg are two points behind the leaders, with Emma Aleman and Gary Aleman seated in third place with 35 points. Other team standings are: Marge Campbell and Hilda Hayden 21 points and Skip Keller and Milton Roettger with 11 points.

They used to say in parts of England that biting off the first fern seen in spring would keep one free from toothache all year.

Little League president, Moores miffed over field conditions

By ERIC GEARNES
(Special to ANP)

Jack Moores, President of the Romulus Senior Little League, is mad and he wants everyone to know it.

Moores has been trying for months to get someone in Romulus to do something about the sad state of the Senior Little League field, but so far all he gets is the "old fashion runaround."

"I have gone to the parks and recreation department and they tell me it is the board of education's responsibility, while I go to the board they tell me to talk to parks and recreation," Moores said.

The field is located directly behind Romulus High School, and it is in fact a mess. The grass is extremely long and basepaths are unidentifiable, and the backstop has part of the screen sticking out so that a player going for a foul pop fly could seriously be hurt.

What really gets under Jack Moores' skin is the fact that all the other diamonds in the complex seem to be getting the care they need.

The softball field was carefully groomed and manicured and quite expertly marked as well.

"It seems as if whatever the softballers want they get," Moores claimed. "Other communities really get involved with their kids and it hurts our kids to see how good other facilities are."

Moores cited Westland, Melvindale, Dearborn, Wayne and Plymouth as areas with excellent little league fields.

Moores has even gone as far as to approach the Mayor's office for help but that, he contends, ended in a dead end.

Moores feels that there is a solution to the problem: "What we need is for a private individual or the city to donate 40 to 50 acres to the little league and we will maintain it ourselves."

The league itself is self-supporting and raises funds by holding weekly bingo at the Romulus Town Hall on Thursday at 10:30 a.m.

With this season almost completed, Moores doesn't expect any action on the problem, but he would still like to know who's in charge so that he and his organization can address themselves to that body.

Moores, who is a trainer at the University of Detroit, can be contacted by calling the U of D offices.

Sweep gives Watt-Lindley 2-point golf cushion

League-leading Bruce Watt and Bill Lindley turned in exceptional games to snatch five important points from Art Lawrence and Jim Thomas to maintain their lead in the Canton Parks and Recreation's Golf League.

Watt and Lindley now have 35½ points and a two-point cushion over challengers Charlie Sheets and Merph Eminger who have amassed 33½ points.

Lindley shot his best round of the year as he came in with a 45 and Watt turned in a 46, his second best effort of the campaign.

Eminger and Sheets salvaged three points from John Seewald and Dennis Stuebben which led to the previous co-leaders' demise.

Tony Valenti posted the second best round of the night as he turned in a 37, while substitute Mike Roemer came in with a 39 to score the second best round of the night.

Here are last week's results: Watt and Lindsey 5, Thomas and Lawrence 0; Sheets and Eminger 3, Seewald and Stuebben 2; Taylor and Brock 4½, Lally and Lyndrup ½; Koers and Koers 2½, Glover and Pitz 2½; Slade and Pietryka 5, Lapierre and Argonis 0; Hoffman and Yuchas 4, McGee and Johnson 1; Mattingly and Oberhelman 3½, Young and Canning 1½; Ryan and White 3, Horrey and Gabriel 2; Ponte and Ponte 3, Valenti and Kraft 2; Rehberg and Riggs 3½, Mogelnicki and Natoli 1½.

YOU ARE NOT A DOLLAR SIGN! Sales Mgr. ED FREEH Buying a home is a very important investment for any family. It is not an inexpensive investment by any means, even though it is a good one, particularly as a hedge against today's spiraling inflation. Because home buying is such a substantial investment, Garlings works to keep costs down for each home-seeking family. You are not a dollar sign in our eyes! We know each family has different housing needs, different incomes, different savings and different financial obligations. We strive to match your needs and wants to your income, while giving you the best possible buy for your money. Overburdening a family with more home than is needed at too high a cost is not the way we do business at Garlings. For friendly, helpful, economical assistance in seeking a home, call upon Garlings.
